

Ford Denies Nixon Pardon Deal

Nixon, On Tape, Says Ford Should Try To Avert Probe

Washington (UPI) — On a White House tape played publicly for the first time Thursday, President Richard M. Nixon said House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford should try to head off a House investigation of the 1972 Watergate break-in.

"Jerry's really got to lead on this. He's got to really lead," Nixon said on the tape played to the 12 jurors in the Watergate cover-up trial.

The tape of Nixon's Sept. 15, 1972, conversation with his aides, H. R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III was played amid a flurry of last-minute motions by the defendants in a vain effort to prevent the tapes from being used as evidence.

Jury Has Transcripts

Every person in the silent courtroom — the jury, Judge John J. Sirica, the five defendants, their lawyers, and the 100 persons in the audience — wore earphones to hear the tape. The jury and reporters had transcripts to follow the conversation more easily.

The House Judiciary Committee, during its impeachment inquiry, and the Nixon White House previously had released transcripts of the conversation, so little new of substance was learned.

But the tapes revealed impressions. Dean, who testified moments earlier that he had spoken with Nixon previous to that day only at a half-dozen ceremonial occasions, grew in confidence, and spoke much more frequently as the 49-minute conversation progressed, the tape showed.

Haldeman, the White House chief of staff with a reputation for being stern and all-business, laughed frequently on the tape.

Nixon In Charge

Nixon clearly was in charge. The recorded conversation took place on the afternoon following the first series of indictments in the burglary of Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Ford's name came up as Nixon, Dean and Haldeman discussed an investigation that Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, was conducting.

"Uh, what about Ford? Do you think so? Do you think he can do anything with Patman?" Nixon asked.

"I don't think anybody can do anything with Patman," Dean said. "But if, if Ford can get the minority (Republican) members, uh, together on that one, it's going to be a lot..."

Jerry Could Try

... But you see, Widnall (Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N.J.) — let's take somebody — Jerry could talk to him," Nixon said. "Put it down, uh, Jerry should talk to Widnall and, uh, just brace him, tell him I thought it was (unintelligible) start behaving."

Former Atty. Gen. John N.

Mitchell, former White House aides Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, former Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian, and Nixon re-election lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson are in the 13th day of their trial for conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

John J. Wilson, Haldeman's lawyer, said he would object to "every line" of the White House tapes as being hearsay evidence. Sirica overruled him and to prevent him from interrupting the playing of the tape, told him to make his one all-embracing objection.

William S. Frates, Ehrlichman's lawyer, did not object to the tapes — he said he will introduce some in Ehrlichman's defense — but objected to the use of transcripts by the jury. Sirica overruled him.

More Bias Found

Prosecutors, meanwhile, confirmed that they had found more bias among potential jurors against the prosecution than against the defense.

"It's not unfair to say that we had more people say (during jury selection) that the government was proceeding unfairly because of the pardon than had an opinion on the guilt or innocence of the defendants."

He was interrupted by defense attorneys, who objected that he was discussing material which Sirica had ordered participants not to talk about.

Sirica agreed. "I don't think we should say any more about that," he said.

Washington (AP) — President Ford, in an unprecedented personal appearance before a congressional panel, said Thursday "there was no deal, period, under no circumstances," in his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon.

Ford said that he granted the pardon for the benefit of the nation, not Nixon, and he is convinced he did the right thing at the right time.

"I wanted to do all I could to shift our attentions from the pursuit of a fallen president to the pursuit of the urgent needs of a rising nation," he said.

Ford said he hoped by coming before the House judiciary subcommittee and giving his account of the pardon personally he had "at least cleared the air" of the rumors and suspicions that have circulated about the pardon since he announced it Sept. 8.

But most subcommittee members said they still regarded many questions as unanswered, and Chairman William Hungate, D-Mo., said further hearings, with other witnesses, might be held after the November elections.

"I'm confident all the facts are not out," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., author of one of the two resolutions of inquiry that led to Ford's appearance.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., author of the other one, said more witnesses had to be called, particularly former White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig, before Congress and the nation could be certain there was no deal involved in the pardon.

"This is only the beginning," she said.

Before submitting to brief questioning by the subcommittee members, Ford read for 45 minutes from a prepared statement in which he recounted to a nationwide radio-TV audience the steps leading up to the pardon.

He said a pardon was first mentioned to him by Haig at a meeting Aug. 1, a week before Nixon resigned, as one of six courses of action being considered in the White House.

The meeting was prompted by the discovery that a tape Nixon had been withholding from the courts contained damaging evidence of his knowledge of the Watergate cover-up, Ford said.

"The substance of his (Haig's) conversation was that the new disclosure would be devastating, even catastrophic, insofar as President Nixon was concerned," Ford said. The tape was made public Aug. 5, producing overwhelming sentiment in Congress for Nixon's impeachment.

Ford said other steps being considered on Aug. 1 were fighting impeachment to the end, resignation at once, resignation at a later date, a temporary stepdown by Nixon, trying to get a censure vote as an alternative to impeachment, and a Nixon pardon of himself.

Ford said Haig did not advocate any of the options and that he withheld any recommendation of his own until he had time for further thought.

Ford said the subject of a pardon for Nixon was not brought up again until his first news conference as president on Aug. 28, when he was advised to prepare for questions about it. The questions came and Ford said he would not make any decision until he saw what the special prosecutor and the courts would do.

"Shortly afterwards," Ford told congressmen, "I became greatly concerned that if Mr. Nixon's prosecution and trial were prolonged, the passions generated over a long period of time would seriously disrupt the healing of our country from the wounds of the past."

Ford said he sought legal advice from White House counsel Philip Buchen and other lawyers on his staff about the pardon powers of a president, but otherwise consulted no one about it. He also said no one recommended he grant the pardon.

Other than seeking assurances that Nixon would accept a pardon, he set no conditions on it, he said, specifically not requesting a confession. In answer to a question later, he said he felt the acceptance of the pardon was an admission of guilt by Nixon.

Ford said there was no connection between the pardon and the arrangement for disposition of White House tapes and other documents reached with the former president at about the time the pardon was being considered.

He said the White House was "besieged" with requests for access to the tapes by the special prosecutor and others, and that he set out to settle that question before the pardon issue arose.

The issue of the tapes produced the sharpest question of the hearing from Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., who noted the agreement gives Nixon ownership of the tapes and provides for their destruction on his death. She said that raised a suspicion that there might be recorded conversations

Urbom Finds 4 Guilty In Wounded Knee Trial

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom Thursday handed down verdicts of guilty against four men in the third Wounded Knee trial to be held in Lincoln.

The guilty verdicts are the first the government has obtained in the Wounded Knee trials, which began in Sioux Falls, S.D., St. Paul, Minn., and Lincoln several months ago.

The guilty verdicts, however, are subject to a determination of any rights the four men have under the Treaty of 1868.

Indian leaders have said repeatedly that the Treaty of 1868 is "what Wounded Knee was all about," claiming it raises the issue of the sovereignty of Indian people.

A major element of the "treaty defense" in Wounded Knee cases appears to be a claim that according to the treaty, federal officers had no right to be on Indian land.

If that portion of the treaty dealing with Indian sovereignty is eventually supported in the court, any charges filed by the government would be void, which would cancel any convictions.

Urbom is scheduled to begin a hearing on the treaty, which the government claims has been repealed, on Dec. 16.

The trial of Larry A. Johns, of Rockford, Ill., Reginald Dodge, Colin Wesaw, and Mark Fleury, all of Chicago, Ill., began Sept. 30.

The four men were arrested April 27, 1973 in a blowout (a natural depression caused by wind or water) on the James Larabee ranch on the Pine Ridge Reservation near Porcupine, S.D.

Mrs. Joanne Larabee had testified that one of the men, Mark Fleury, entered her ranch home carrying a rifle and told her he wanted a ride to Wounded Knee.

In a memorandum on the incident, Urbom wrote that Fleury said he did not wish to harm Mrs. Larabee, but threatened to "burn her out," if she called police.

Mrs. Larabee first told Fleury it was impossible to give him the ride. When he asked for a ride to Porcupine, Mrs. Larabee told him to go get her husband who was in the field.

When Fleury started up the stairs to the kitchen, Mrs. Larabee said, she called her husband on a two-way radio.

She said Fleury called her a "dirty white bitch" and ran outside. According to Urbom, Mrs. Larabee said she saw another man, Larry Johns, standing outside the home.

Urbom wrote that after Fleury and Johns left the ranch they were joined by Reginald Dodge and Colin Wesaw. When they entered the blowout, several hundred yards from the Larabee home, the four were surrounded by ranchers who lived in the area.

A few minutes later two Bureau of Indian Affairs policemen arrived and ordered the men to come out with their hands on their heads.

Instead shots were fired by two of the men. The officers returned the fire and again ordered them to come out. This time they complied, Urbom wrote.

The four were carrying a rifle, a shotgun, a bow, 12 arrows, two or three backpacks, several shotgun cartridges and 51 rifle shells, Urbom wrote.

All four men had been charged with two counts of assaulting federal officers and conspiring to enter Wounded Knee with weapons.

Judge Urbom Monday acquitted the men of two counts of assaulting federal officers, writing that no one knew which of the two men fired shots in the blowout.

Urbom said he was "confident that it is distressing to many to have a principle of law which means that when four people are together and two of them commit a criminal act, but no one knows which of the two it was, that all must be acquitted of the crime."

"Nonetheless, I think this is the principle of law with which we are dealing," he said.

All four men were found guilty of conspiring to obstruct, impede and interfere with U.S. Marshals and special FBI agents. The charge carries a penalty of up to five years in prison, a $10,000 fine or both.

Fleury was also found guilty of second degree burglary and simple assault in connection with the incident in the Larabee home.

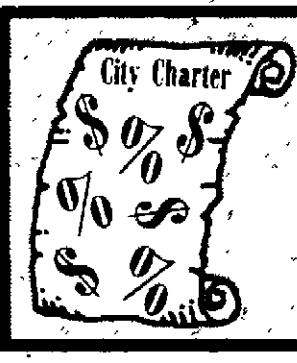

The charge of second degree burglary (breaking and entering) carries a penalty of five to fifteen years in prison. Simple assault carries a penalty of three months in prison, a $300 fine or both.

Fleury had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon, but Urbom reduced the charge, holding that the evidence did not support the more serious charge.

Senators Question Lease Comparison Validity

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State senators, investigating alleged political pay-offs in the Exon administration, Thursday questioned whether valid comparisons were used to decide that a State Labor Department lease with an Exon associate was a good deal for the state.

The former chief fiscal officer for the State Labor Department, Karl Kost, told a committee chaired by Sen. Robert Clark he compared the lease for office space, owned in part by Exon supporter James Jackson, to other proposals Jackson had made to the Douglas County Board.

Square foot costs on Jackson's Douglas County lease proposals were $4.96 and $4.75. The lease for the Labor Department building constructed by Jado Investment Co., owned by Jackson and Robert Donermeyer, costs the state approximately $4.50 per square foot, current figures indicate.

Senators suggested the comparison was poor, since the proposals used for comparison called for finished walls on the interiors. The building leased by the department at 5404 Cedar in Omaha has exposed walls and was built in the cheapest way possible, Clark said.

The federal government pays the rent on the Labor Department's offices and approved the lease based on the comparable office rates listed by Kost. The federal employment security manual says office space should be procured "by competitive bidding or by a comprehensive survey."

There was no bidding done on the Labor Department's Omaha offices, and senators questioned whether a comprehensive survey was taken.

State laws do not require the administration to advertise for bids on office space.

Sen. E. Thome Johnson of Fremont said he was not satisfied that the Labor Department had tried to find another potential landlord.

Kost replied that if the word had gotten out the state was looking for office space, the eventual cost could have risen.

Johnson asked, "Why didn't you try to find cheaper offices?"

Kost said, "I was plenty busy at the time." He said he was working with an addition to the Labor Department's Lincoln offices and offices in Hastings.

"Renting buildings isn't my only job. I had other things to do. I was busy."

"May Be Best Ever"

Kost, who has since retired, said the lease is "more than comparable" adding that the lease "may turn out to be the best lease ever written."

Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said the estimated operating costs of the Jado building are "way off base," since the full property tax load, which the lease stipulates the state will pay, is not reflected.

Board members also indicated that the Crostown route may be discontinued unless ridership picks up this month.

An average of 71 people boarded the buses daily during September on that run, at a cost of $962. September revenues on that route were $315.

Frank pointed out that it usually takes six months for new bus routes to become established.

The bus manager also reported he will study the possibility of running the O St. shuttle on Saturdays. The minibus shuttle runs on week days only.

In other business, the board elected Joan Bowers chairwoman of the panel and re-elected Turner Allen vice chairman. Bowers succeeds Ross Martin.

New Bus Route Runs Deeply In Red

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) Board may have to scratch the new Briarhurst shuttle run because the route lost $776 during September.

Additionally, two other newly inaugurated routes — the O St. special and the Crosstown route — are losing money, but at a rate comparable to losses in the system as a whole, LTS Manager Dick Frank said Thursday.

The O St. run, which shuttles passengers between downtown and Gateway Shopping Center, is faring the best of the new routes. It lost $219 during September.

The Crosstown route, which was reinstated due to demands of residents in University Place and College View, lost $667 last month, LTS figures show.

Overall, LTS lost $1,663 on the three new routes, which have been in operation since the first part of September.

Overall losses for September were $21,704, compared to a $20,234 loss during September 1973.

LTS board members directed Frank to meet with representatives of the Briarhurst homeowners association, who were instrumental in urging the board to extend service into their neighborhood in south Lincoln.

Last month an average of 29 people rode that bus each day. It cost the city $872 to run the coaches to the area during the month, but revenues only brought in $96.

An average of 104 people took the O St. shuttle each day. It cost LTS $745 to keep that bus operating last month. Passengers contributed $536 toward that bill.

Analyst Says Ford, In Appearing, Takes Advice Nixon Rejected

By JOHN HERBERS

Washington — When former President Nixon first became mired in the Watergate charges early in 1973, some friendly Republican leaders told him all a president needed to do to disarm a hostile Congress was to meet humbly with a congressional committee and answer questions.

Nixon could never bring himself to accept that advice. Ford did and the result was as predicted: members of a subcommittee, with the lone exception of Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., seemed so overwhelmed by the gesture of a president submitting to an open, congressional inquiry that much of the rancor caused by Ford's pardon of Nixon seemed to have evaporated, at least while Ford was in the room.

Yet as with most everything Ford does these days, the result seemed to many who followed the session to be a mixture of pluses and minuses. While his two-hour appearance on national television may well have helped in his effort to put the stigma of the Nixon pardon behind him, his explanations went little beyond his previous statements and thus did not directly address the questions that Rep. Holtzman said had raised "very dark suspicions in the public's mind."

From the White House point of view, the pluses were very substantial. During most of the Johnson and Nixon administrations, Congress had fretted under an overpowering White House, so much so that the idea of a president appearing before a House subcommittee to answer questions from junior representatives was unthinkable.

Not only did Ford do that with no show of presidential condescension, but the questions he voluntarily responded to in his prepared statement were posed by Reps. Bella S. Abzug of New York and John Conyers Jr. of Michigan, both abrasive liberal Democrats whom the Nixon White House had held in disdain.

Further, Ford came through on television as confident and in charge. There was no display of anger at Mrs. Holtzman's barbs. Although he did not answer her questions, his assertions throughout that there was "no deal" with Nixon had a ring of conviction, according to members of Congress who have known Ford for years.

Also, Ford's assertion that his pardon of Nixon was primarily to "change the national focus" from Watergate to national and international problems seemed more valid today than it did immediately after the pardon, when the action aroused the country anew about the abuses of the White House.

Although the furor has not died, it has now lessened to the extent that Ford is able to conduct the business of his offices without the daily preoccupation of Watergate. For example, questions on that subject no longer dominate the daily White House news briefings as they did for so many months. In any event, Ford and his assistants believe that the public indignation over the Nixon pardon is steadily fading into the background.

On the minus side, Ford's failure to go much beyond his previous explanations did, in the opinion of some Judiciary Committee members, keep alive the "dark suspicions" raised by the pardon. Thus it is now considered likely that the subcommittee, rather than ending its inquiry, will call other witnesses to check out Ford's story.

Ford Gives Reply

between Ford and Nixon that Ford would like to see kept from the public.

Ford did not reply directly to her question but said the tapes were fully under the control of the White House and would be available to the special prosecutor or the courts.

Miss Holtzman was the only subcommittee member who seemed to regard Ford as just another witness, not the president. She said the hearings were the result of "dark suspicions" that could not possibly be allayed in the brief time set aside for the hearing.

As she started to list the suspicions, including the possibility that the pardon was the result of a deal, Ford interrupted her and said, "I want to assure you, the Congress and the American people that there was no deal, period, under no circumstances."

Miss Holtzman said Ford's lengthy statement did nothing to explain the haste with which he acted in granting the pardon, the lack of consultation that preceded it and the fact that the pardon was granted without any accounting of the charges against Nixon.

There were other pointed

questions from some of the Democratic members, including Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who asked how a high school teacher could explain the pardon along with the concept of equal justice under the law.

Ford replied that Nixon was the 37th president, and "the only one in the history of this country who has resigned in shame and disgrace. That, in and of itself, can be explained to students," he said.

Ford, who shook hands with each member following his testimony, won high marks from them all for making the trip from the White House to Capitol Hill. Historians are hazy on it but some say no president ever before testified before a congressional committee; others say Abraham Lincoln testified about charges his wife was a Southern sympathizer.

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the ranking Republican member of the Judiciary Committee, said Ford's statement and answers to questions should end the controversy over, the pardon. "All reasonable questions have now been laid to rest," he said.

But few other members felt Ford had added anything new to the issue, or that it would fade away.

Ford said a delay until any court process were completed could have taken a year, during which the divisions over Watergate would have continued to distract the nation.

N.Y. Times Summary

Nixon Seeks Tape Control

Washington — Lawyers for former President Richard M. Nixon have asked a federal district court in Washington to endorse last month's agreement giving Nixon personal control over his presidential tape recordings and papers. The move by the Nixon legal staff came after private negotiations over access to the tapes and papers broke down between lawyers for Nixon, Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the White House.

Rocky Helped Demo

New York — Vice President-designate Rockefeller covertly aided the 1972 re-election campaign of Rep. Hugh L. Carey who is now the Democratic gubernatorial candidate in New York and favored to defeat Rockefeller's hand-picked successor, Gov. Malcolm Wilson, Republican, Democratic and conservative informants have reported.

Wilson: Practice Legal

New York — Gov. Malcolm Wilson has affirmed that in his 15 years as lieutenant governor he practiced law with his firm for which he received an approximate total of $500,000. In a sworn statement filed with federal court, he declared his practice was legal and ethical.

Delegates Invited To Portugal

United Nations, N.Y. — The new president of Portugal, Francisco da Costa Gomes, in an address to the United Nations General Assembly invited delegates to see for themselves in his country that "alarmist" appraisals of its situation were unfounded.

Force Said 'Unwise Gamble'

New York — A relaxation of the federal deadline for a 90% reduction in air pollutants emitted by new autos until 1980 has been proposed in a study by three leading universities. The report, prepared by Columbia and Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, called the forcing of auto companies to adopt the catalytic converter now as an exhaust control an "unwise gamble."

India Aid Cut Urged

Washington (WSN) — Rep. Stanford E. Parris, R-Va., author of a bill to cut off United States aid to India, says satellite launching vehicles and other "space hardware" India is developing could be diverted to "military purposes."

Congress OKs New Aid Cutoff

Washington (AP) — The head-to-head impasse between President Ford and Congress over cutting off U.S. military aid to Turkey was broken Thursday with approval of a new compromise reportedly acceptable to Ford.

It was passed overwhelmingly by the House and then by the Senate within hours after the House failed by only two votes to override Ford's second veto of a congressional Turkish aid cutoff. Nebraska Republican Reps. Dave Martin, John Y. McCollister and Charles Thone did not vote on overriding the second veto.

The House approved the new compromise 191 to 33, and the Senate sent it to Ford by voice vote.

The new compromise delays cutoff of the Turkish aid until Dec. 10, providing Turkey sends no more "implements of war" to its occupations forces on Cyprus, does not enlarge those forces and continues to observe the present cease-fire. The measure Ford vetoed earlier would have cut off aid if Turkey sent any kind of equipment to the Cyprus forces.

The compromise passed the House with little debate after leaders announced it would not be vetoed by Ford.

The controversy had held up adjournment of Congress for the fall election campaign by nearly a week. Both houses recessed in late afternoon until Nov. 18.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., told the Senate that President Ford accepted the ban on transshipment of "implements of war" by Turkey "with great reluctance and begrudgingly."

Martin Opposes Turkey Aid Cut

Washington (AP) — Only one Nebraska representative voted Wednesday on the bill to cut off military aid to Turkey earlier than Dec. 10 if Turkey sends any U.S. equipment to its forces in Cyprus.

Republican Rep. Dave Martin voted against the measure, which passed the House, 194-144. Rep. John Y. McCollister and Rep. Charles Thone, also Republicans, did not vote.

Both Nebraska Republican Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska voted to allow unrestricted aid to Turkey until Dec. 10. The move was rejected 40-27.

Ford Pool Sidetracked

Washington (AP) — Plans to build a new White House swimming pool for President Ford have been temporarily sidetracked because of the nation's economic problems.

"The President asked the American people to tighten their belts and avoid unnecessary expenditures and it doesn't seem the proper time to ask people to contribute to a swimming pool," said Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

The White House had gone along with plans for a pool that would have cost an estimated $300,000 to be raised by a public fund-raising drive.

Cancer Hasn't Spread

NEW YORK (AP) — In an all but unbelievable coincidence, Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller's wife, Happy, had a cancerous breast removed Thursday, just three weeks after President Ford's wife underwent a similar operation.

Doctors said preliminary examination indicated the cancer had not spread, which would give Mrs. Rockefeller a 90 per cent chance of recovery.

"You won't believe what I'm going to tell you," Rockefeller told newsmen. He then revealed that his 48-year-old wife was undergoing a mastectomy of the left breast at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, where his brother, Laurence Rockefeller, is board chairman. Rockefeller indicated that his wife's discovery of a telltale lump in her breast was accelerated by the wide publicity surrounding the removal Sept. 28 of Mrs. Betty Ford's right breast.

"I suppose . . . Mrs. Ford has made everybody a little more conscious," Rockefeller told a news conference in his mid-Manhattan office, before leaving for the hospital on East 68th Street.

The family crisis came amid a widening political crisis occasioned by Ford's nomination of Rockefeller Aug. 20 to be vice president.

Pending in the Congress are further hearings, centering on Rockefeller's $1.7 million in gifts bestowed on associates.

As relayed by her surgeon, Dr. Jerome Urban, Mrs. Rockefeller's first words as she came out from under the anesthetic were: "Where am I?"

Happy Rockefeller

was over, she replied weakly: "Thank goodness."

Rockefeller told Dr. Urban and his associates: "Thank you, and thank God!"

"She recuperated fantastically rapidly," said Dr. Urban, who cut away Mrs. Rockefeller's entire left breast, as well as the lymph nodes in the left armpit, but left a major portion of the chest muscle intact. She is expected to leave the hospital in about a week.

Earlier, Rockefeller had quoted the hospital as telling him that if the cancer had invaded the lymph nodes, his wife had a 70 per cent chance of recovery. If it had not, the chances rose to 90 per cent.

According to Urban, it was about a week after Mrs. Ford's operation that Mrs. Rockefeller discovered a lump on her left breast. Rockefeller said this was the first hint of any trouble, describing his wife as hitherto "very strong, very healthy."

After a breast X-ray, Urban said Mrs. Rockefeller consulted him and on his advice entered the hospital Wednesday for the surgery. He added that the results of the breast X-ray were suspicious rather than definite, and that the two-week time lapse presumably occurred because Mrs. Rockefeller was "trying to make up her mind."

"As just one more family, we're just very grateful that it led to a checkup," Rockefeller said, referring to his wife's discovery of the breast lump.

The operation got under way at 8:30 a.m. and was concluded about noon. The doctors said they discovered three cancerous nodules about the size of the tip of a little finger in the breast and its surrounding tissue during the mastectomy.

"The coincidence is almost unbelievable," President Ford told a group of Spanish-speaking leaders at the White House, in reference to Mrs. Rockefeller's operation which so closely resembled his own wife's.

Rockefeller told President Ford several days ago that his wife was facing a biopsy, because of suspected breast cancer.

Ford returned from testifying on Capitol Hill concerning his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon, to be informed that the biopsy had been positive and that Mrs. Rockefeller was undergoing surgery.

Both Rockefeller, now 66, and his wife divorced prior mates to marry 11 years ago, and many politicians believe this cost him his much-coveted opportunity to run for the presidency.

Happy, whose actual name is Margaretta Fidler Murphy Rockefeller, is an attractive, 5-foot-7 daughter of a Philadelphia Main Line millionaire family.

Burton To Marry Princess Elizabeth

LONDON (AP) — Richard Burton said Thursday he plans to marry Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia, a relative of the British royal family and an old friend of Elizabeth Taylor.

"We are going to get married as soon as it is practically possible," the Welsh actor told newsmen outside his London home, once shared with Miss Taylor.

By his side was the 37-year-old, dark-haired princess, who is still married to a British businessman.

"We have known each other casually for several years and we met again three weeks ago," said Burton, divorced from Miss Taylor in June after a stormy, 10-year marriage.

Burton and his new love spent last weekend in Paris and rumors of their romance caught up with them Thursday in London.

"We both hoped that this would have progressed without this sudden explosion and we both hope that this will not have repercussions on those we both love," said Burton, 49 next month. The couple is to leave Friday for Switzerland.

Princess Elizabeth, who fled Yugoslavia when she was 4 and has made England her home, has been married twice. She eloped 14 years ago with New York clothing millionaire Howard Oxenberg. They have two daughters, Catherine, 13, and Christine, 11.

She is separated from her second husband, London merchant banker Neil Balfour, 33, who was reported hard at work in his London office as news of the romance broke. They have a 4-year-old son.

Daughter of Prince Paul of Yugoslavia and Princess Olga of Greece, Princess Elizabeth is a second cousin of the heir to the British throne, Prince Charles.

Burton and his bride-to-be were married Wednesday with Princess Alexandra of Britain, to break the news to the royal family.

Burton, twice divorced, was introduced to the princess by Miss Taylor, who often lunched with her royal friend. Burton would frequently tag along, friends said.

The princess, exiled from Yugoslavia in 1940 when the monarchy was overthrown, was brought up in Kenya, France and Greece. She works in an antique shop in London's fashionable Chelsea district.

Her husband's brother, Christopher Balfour, said Thursday the question of divorce had not been discussed by the princess and her husband.

Ford Vetoes Access Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford vetoed legislation Thursday designed to strengthen public access to government documents under the Freedom of Information Act.

Ford said he felt the measure could adversely affect intelligence secrets and diplomatic relations.

In a veto message to the House of Representatives, the President said he objected to the courts being permitted to make what amounts to "the initial classification decision in sensitive and complex areas where they have no expertise."

He also questioned the time constraints in the bill by which agencies would have to comply within a certain period of time to requests for information.

Dent Says GNP's Slump Only 'Sideways Waffling'

Washington (UPI) — The gross national product fell into its longest slump in 14 years through September, according to figures released Thursday. But commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent said the economy was only "sideways waffling" and not in a recession.

The value of the nation's output of goods and services declined 2.9% in real terms for the third quarter because of inflation, which surged up 11.5%, the Commerce Department said.

The GNP dropped 7% in the first quarter and 1.6% in the second quarter, resulting in the longest economic slump since four quarters of decline in 1960-61.

The traditional definition of a recession has been two quarters of decline in the real GNP. But Dent told a news briefing that the GNP decline was not broad enough to qualify for a recession.

'Energy Spasm'

"What we have is sideways waffling," said Dent, who had called the second quarter slide "an energy spasm."

In total dollar value, the GNP from the second quarter to the third increased $27.8 billion to $1.412 trillion. But inflation at an annual rate of 11.5% in the July-September quarter, sent the real GNP into decline by 2.9%.

Inflation for GNP purposes was estimated at 9.3% in the second quarter.

The decline was centered in housing, business inventories and exports. Nonfarm housing plunged 30.5%, and exports fell 13.9%. Business inventories, for which there was no percentage calculated, dropped $5 billion.

Dent said the declining value of inventories was a healthy sign. "Businesses no longer have to build inventories for fear of intervention" in the form of government price controls, Dent said.

He said dwindling inventories could indicate price relief for consumers in the months ahead. The secretary projected growth in real GNP "early next year," if Congress fully implements President Ford's tax surcharge and consumers cut spending.

Constant-Dollar Terms
In constant dollars, using 1958

for a base, the nation's output of goods and services in the third quarter was estimated at $821.1 billion on an annual basis, down $6 billion from the second quarter.

In constant terms there was a $7.8 billion decline in the value of the private domestic investment and a $400 million decline in government purchases of goods and services. Net exports of goods and services also fell, an estimated $1.3 billion from the second to the third quarter.

The figures released for the third quarter Thursday were based on data for July and August. Dent said the results may differ when September is included. But the size of the GNP drop suggests that any modifications would not be sufficient to change the deficit.

4 Return; 2 Arrested

MIAMI (AP) — Four Americans released from Cuban jails as a goodwill gesture from the Cuban government to two U.S. senators returned home Thursday, and two of them were promptly arrested by the FBI.

Philip Fred Burris of Oakland, Calif., and Richard Peter Johnson, whose parents live in Walnut Creek, Calif., were arrested by agents who boarded the commercial airliner that brought them to Miami from Barbados. They were flown to Barbados from Cuba on Wednesday. Burris and Johnson, held by the Cuban government on drug trafficking charges after their plane ran out of fuel and landed on the Communist island in November 1970, were arraigned before a U.S. Magistrate on charges of transporting a stolen airplane to Cuba.

The two other released prisoners, David Bruce Nirenburg and Susan Lane Brown, were whisked into a taxi by police who said the two do not face charges.

William Scott Plans To Vote Against Confirmation Of Rocky

Washington (UPI) — Conservative Sen. William V. Scott, R-Va., said Thursday he will vote against confirmation of Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president because his "controversial nature will divide the country."

Scott became the first senator to announce he will vote against Rockefeller. Another conservative, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has been a strong critic of the nomination for weeks. Rockefeller was defended by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., who said in a Senate speech, "Few, if any Americans, are better qualified for this position."

Percy criticized delays on the Rockefeller nomination, saying eight weeks is "ample time" to determine his qualifications.

The Senate Rules Committee has delayed any action on the nomination until Nov. 13, when it reopens hearings a week before Congress returns from the election recess.

Rockefeller will be called as the first witness and will be asked to explain his brother's financing of a book derogatory to his 1970 gubernatorial opponent and his nearly $1.7 million in cash gifts to associates.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., has not scheduled hearings yet, but set Oct. 30 for a meeting of the committee to discuss the Rockefeller nomination.

Scott said the Rockefeller nomination could "revive much of the Watergate atmosphere" and urged President Ford to withdraw Rockefeller's name.

In a Senate speech, he said it "would be a mistake to push the confirmation when questions have been raised regarding his moral and ethical standards."

He faulted Rockefeller for inability to deal with economic problems, personal moral standards, the rejection of GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater in 1964, and his "controversial nature, which would divide the country."

School Attendance Improves In Boston

Boston (AP) — Attendance was high and schools were quiet Thursday as police patrolled in force. National Guardsmen waited on alert and federal troops stood ready to enter the city in case of trouble.

The mayor's office said school attendance Thursday was 76.4 per cent of projected enrollment citywide, up substantially from Wednesday's 66.7 per cent, despite a continuing white boycott at some schools and tension among students.

A school department official said black attendance at South Boston High School's three buildings, in a predominantly white area, had climbed steadily in the last two weeks to a high of 404, or more than 50 per cent of the projected enrollment of 797.

Just one black student went to high school in South Boston on Oct. 7 and 8 after a massive anti-busing parade in the area and several incidents of violence.

Young Writers Meeting Monday

Young Nebraska journalists will attend the Nebraska High School Press Association (NHSPA) conference Monday.

The conference, to be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, is sponsored by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln School of Journalism and the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA).

During the opening program, winners of the 1974 NHSPA and NSAA journalism contests will be announced. Awards will be given for community service, school yearbook and newspaper excellence.

White attendance there Thursday was 338, or about 20 per cent of the projected enrollment of 1,539.

Police remained at South Boston High.

The 450 National Guardsmen put on alert Tuesday were at three armories in the city, interspersing their drill and briefings with games of softball and volleyball.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent was in close touch with law enforcement officials and was ready "to take whatever action is necessary to maintain public safety," a spokesman said.

And Army paratroopers at Ft. Bragg, N.C., remained on alert for a possible call to intervene, as a "last resort," in the Boston school crisis.

The mayor's office reported, meanwhile, overtime police costs directly related to school safety in Boston reached $1.36 million in September.

At Hyde Park High, where violence Tuesday resulted in the National Guard alert, 626 students attended classes Thursday. Only 353 were present Wednesday.

Joseph Crowley, 15, who was stabbed in the chest at the school on Tuesday, was released Thursday from Carney Hospital.

School officials checked arriving students for weapons at Hyde Park High, and Headmaster John Best said one student was suspended when what looked like a table leg was found in his sleeve.

A spokesman said no body search was involved, but that bags and purses were examined. Several students declined to be searched and did not enter the school, he said.

Ford Convincing But Wrong

President Ford was very convincing in his explanation to members of Congress Thursday that there was no deal made with Richard Nixon that a pardon would follow a resignation. We believe that there was no deal; that nothing sinister led to Ford's mistaken conclusion that the pardon so soon after he took office was the best thing for the nation.

We believe in the President's explanation and his sincerity. We still think he was dead wrong. But the pardon stands. And so does the opposition to it by so many people who resent the double standard it exemplifies and the fact that no matter in what good faith it was offered, it still has the effect of covering up the coverup.

Having satisfactorily answered some of the questions surrounding the pardon, however, Ford still has not justified the tapes deal made with Nixon. Nor has he exerted much leadership in seeing that the full story of Watergate comes out even though the major participant is beyond prosecution.

The President may have gained a few points in his appearance before the House Judiciary subcommittee, but he should be aware that a majority of people in the nation are in no mood to let it all drop.

They expect that an aggressive special prosecutor will be appointed to tie up the loose ends remaining in the government's case against the Watergate criminals. They do not want possible evidence of wrongdoing turned over to Nixon in California. They want it kept by the government in Washington. And in the interests of justice they want the former president to tell his part of the story during the trial of his subordinates — whether by deposition under oath at San Clemente or in the courtroom at Washington. They want that testimony compelled if necessary.

President Ford should realize that while people may accept his motives for pardoning Nixon, Watergate is not yet behind us and won't be until the full truth is known.

License Law Stinks

Being personally familiar with a recent case involving Nebraska's driving license point system, we have concluded that the law stinks. The deal is that you are given points of various numbers for various driving violations.

You get 2 points if you run a stop sign, 1 to 3 points for speeding (3 for 10 miles an hour or more), 4 points for careless driving, 5 for reckless, 6 for willful reckless, 6 for drunk driving and 2 for a variety of other moving violations.

If you get 12 points in any two year period, you lose your license for a year. That is plenty tough. But if you lose your license on points a second time within a five year period, the revocation is for three years.

In the case with which we are familiar, a three-year suspension, points were accumulated in the one to three point categories of violations. Now that's not an enviable driving record but the three-year suspension is punishment far in excess of the severity of the crime.

One seriously doubts that the law could stand a constitutional test of propriety but there is no doubt in our mind at all that the law can and does work totally unwarranted hardships and injustices. This is not meant to question the seriousness of any moving traffic violations, but an equally important part of the law is that the penalties correlate as nearly as possible with the violations involved. We see no correlation at all when an individual can lose his license for three years for violations that include such things as going 29 miles an hour in a 25 mile an hour zone.

New Airport To Cost

Lincolmites and others will no doubt enjoy and be proud of the new $8 million municipal airport facilities now nearing completion. They will find, however, that more than physical changes have taken place at the site.

When you go to the new terminal for anything, you will pay for parking. That will be a little added irritant that does not exist at the old facilities.

With the availability of space there is at the airport, one might wonder why a charge would have to be levied for parking.

Such charges generally are tied in with at least some lack of sufficient space to satisfy everyone.

The only answer for the airport is that it wants the revenue that presumably can be made off a parking operation. It sort of makes you think a lot more kindly about the old Terminal Building and an operation that is so plain and simple that anyone parks free for as long as they want. Anyone who thinks you don't pay a price for progress just doesn't know what is going on.

Press To Blame For WW II?

NEW YORK — The lady on my right at dinner seemed quite normal. She used knife, fork and spoon, and extended a delicate pinky whenever she sipped her tea.

But then she said, "If the Democrats had broken into Republican headquarters, the newspapers and TV would have laughed it off and we would never have heard of it again." She meant it.

A tycoon of considerable eminence, holder of many honorary degrees from institutions of learning, said to me, "You fellows in the media have destroyed the reputations of some of the finest and most honest men I've ever met. They couldn't have done those things you accuse them of. Lies, lies, all lies."

He meant it. Publisher-Ambassador Walter H. Annenberg, at a farewell luncheon for American newsmen in London, said of the Watergate tragedy, "Sections of the press were more concerned with a display of power rather than responsibility."

He meant it. Their thoughts and words are echoed here and there in the country, and that's constitutionally correct. But it always comes as a jolt when persons of discernment absolve the Watergate conspirators and blame the last free press on earth for letting the people in on their connivings. It is as if these die-hards would prefer to have had the malignancy in the White House go untreated.

The press did not order the plumbers to burgle Larry O'Brien's offices or Dr. Lewis Fielding files. It did not wire the Oval Room for sound. It did not put the arm on big business to shovel fortunes into CREEP (the Committee to Re-Elect the President). It paid for none of the dirty tricks, engineered none of the "horrors," or feed a single shredding machine, taint even one FBI or CIA man, or bug a soul.

But as it must, if it is to survive as a valid link between government and people, it told the truth about the most callous and cynical conspiracy in American political history.

Nothing is gained, it seems to me, by recalling real or imagined malpractices by past Democratic Presidents and their Administrations. Watergate pales every scandal in American history by a hundredfold: a President forced to resign (after his first Vice President copped a plea and departed), three of his former Cabinet members indicted — one now on trial — his two closest aides on trial, his bag man and attorney in prison, other former aides in or out of jail turning witnesses for the government, and a widespread epidemic of disillusionment in the integrity of the government. To blame the media for all this (and more to come) is like blaming it for covering World War II.

ILL BE LAID UP FROM 3 TO 6 MONTHS OR UNTIL THE END OF THE WATERGATE COVERUP TRIAL — WHICHEVER COMES FIRST.

Journalism Interest Jumps

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Back in the late forties, a journalism student at the University of North Carolina was a member of a small if not very select group, some of whom thought they had found the ideal "crip course," since there were virtually no tests or final examinations.

A devoted few were seriously interested in Walter Spearman's news writing classes or Phillips Russell's lectures on creative writing or O. J. Coffin's course in editorial writing — actually an exciting study of the uses of language. Even these few sometimes felt themselves a bit on the edge of things at a great liberal arts university.

Today, in contrast, journalism education is a big and growing business, not only at Chapel Hill but all over the nation. As late as 1960, for example, there were only 60 students in what had become the U.N.C. School of Journalism; now Dean John Adams has more than 300, with the biggest increase coming in recent years, while the total university enrollment was stabilizing at about 19,500.

At sprawling Texas Tech, out on the high plains at Lubbock, a department of mass communications (including journalism, telecommunications and advertising) was started in 1970 with 261 students; today it has 798. A graduate program had to be expanded by 40 per cent over 1973 for the 1974-75 school year and Chairman Bill Ross already is worried that his school's unfinished new building won't be big enough for projected growth. Yet, Texas Tech, too, has stabilized its overall enrollment, somewhere in excess of 21,000 students.

This is a clear national trend. Paul Peterson of the Ohio State University School of Journalism, a sort of official record-keeper in the field, says it's safe to claim a 10 to 15 per cent growth in the number of journalism students in each of the last six or seven years. Last school year, his figures show, there were more than 40,000 in all.

That this spurt in growth goes back at least into the late sixties is the best response to the easiest explanation — that the part the press played in exposing Watergate and bringing down Richard Nixon has made reporters into what one Texas Tech faculty member called "the new heroes." Undoubtedly, that is part of the answer; Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the two Washington Post reporters who played such a conspicuous part in the Watergate story, are the latest campus heroes — and rightly so.

But that does not entirely explain why Professor Edwin Emery of the University of Minnesota, for example, is finding graduates of Harvard — where there is no journalism school — seeking admission to graduate courses in journalism at Minnesota. A more general reason, as he and Professor Peterson see it, is that today's students tend to be practical rather than idealistic, and recognize journalism education as good vocational training — opening doors not only to newspapers and broadcasting, but to advertising, public relations, graphics, technical writing, and other fields.

Others note that "communicating" is one of the great mystiques of the age. "Getting across" or "relating" or "expressing yourself" is considered a vital process, whether in group or personal relations, in politics or in business; and journalism education is seen by many students not only as the study of communications, but — many journalism educators boast — as a course in self-expression superior to that offered by most college English departments.

But to this grizzled practitioner, the most interesting reason for journalism's growing campus popularity was suggested by Gilbert Mainknecht of Central Michigan University, who observed that "the times have made the media important in everyone's life." Vietnam and Watergate, in his view, have given new meaning and new importance to "the role of the press in society." Students seeking direct involvement in events, to have an impact on the course of things, now believe they can more nearly achieve such personal significance through the media, or at least by the arts of "communicating," than through politics or business (which many students see as corrupt, anyway).

If that is so, the long-term effect will not be upon journalism alone; Dean Adams, for example, says that 40 per cent of his U.N.C. students intend to work somewhere other than newspapers or broadcasting. But for journalism, such a student attitude almost certainly portends the death of the press-box mentality — the reporter's persistent myth that he can be a neutral observer rather than an inevitable part of the action.

The Need To Know

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Wilbur Mills, who has long been regarded as one of the hardest working members of Congress, is now the butt of jokes. A minor driving violation uncovered an apparent peccadillo, and the wags of Washington snicker: "The strippers of the Mills grind slowly."

On the same day, another driving violation took place, this time involving Joan Kennedy, the wife of the senator. This event received press coverage, too; the general reaction was properly one of sympathy.

Great newspapers differed on the way these stories were played. The Washington Post assigned a dozen reporters to cover the Mills affair and ran it above the fold on the front page, mentioning the Joan Kennedy story in a back section; the Washington Star-News juxtaposed both stories on the front page; the New York Times covered the Mills story fully but on an inside page and ran the Joan Kennedy accident as a minor item.

Serious editors gave thought to the play of these stories, and the fact that such different conclusions were reached illustrates one of the dilemmas of our times: How we protect the individual's right to privacy and at the same time defend the public's right to know? A refinement of that dilemma: What part of a public person's life should remain private? When does the public begin to have a right not to know?

The answers cannot be found in law but in custom and taste, which are changing in a way — unfortunately, in my view — that make more acceptable snooping into and gossiping about the sex life and drinking habits of celebrated people.

In "FDR's Last Year," a carefully researched book by Jim Bishop, the President's love affair with Lucy Mercer Rutherford is recounted in more detail than ever before; since the participants are dead the question of taste gives way to the requirements of history, but if any future president of the United States becomes involved with "another woman," he must expect the relationship to be discussed gleefully and in detail on television panel shows.

The drinking habits of congressmen used to be taboo, but columnist Drew Pearson blew the whistle on old Mendel Rivers, and now nobody can stagger to work in the Congress without running some risk of exposure. That is to the good, but how about after hours, as in Chairman Mills' case? If a private toot affects public service, let him who is without sin cast the first stone.

The reason usually advanced for invading the privacy of public people in Washington is this: The nearer a politician approaches great power, the more respectful of respectability he should be, and the more he should be prepared for searching probes into his potential weakness.

That is why, too, the attention given Mills recently is causing moral headaches for journalists who believe that certain problems which should be ignored in most public figures ought to be discussed in any whose finger may be near the nuclear button.

There are gradations of need for the invasion of public people's privacy. I think the editors who buried or ignored the Joan Kennedy story were right: she does not present herself as a candidate and there is no "public right to know" her problems.

The Mills story deserved coverage, but not the whooped-to it received; and inside page sufficed, a permanent record that could be consulted if he aspired to higher office. As a great and wise man put it the other day: "who hasn't had a few wild nights?"

Granted, the right to know about a potential president outweighs his right to privacy; in the case of the Rockefeller tax returns, the public benefits from that exposure, violative though it is to the privacy of many individuals other than the nominee. But the Senate could have handled it in a way that embarrassed fewer people.

The press has a right to publish or broadcast anything. With that goes the obligation to weigh the need for exposure against the right to privacy, even in times when the safest decision is to let it all hang out.

The right to know is not under challenge; what editors and readers should ask themselves about is the need to know.

Top Chicago Cop Seeks Gun Control

CHICAGO — I feel sorry for Police Supt. James Rochford. He spent years working his way to the top job. Now he should be enjoying running the department, marching in parades, picking up a few civic awards.

Instead, he is on his way to a sure ulcer, and maybe some big dental bills from gnashing his teeth.

He is doomed to frustration because he has become hung up on the need for a ban on handguns. Rochford is now the city's most vocal spokesman for gun control.

Take this past weekend, when 22 Chicagoans were murdered, setting what may be a modern record.

If Rochford had been smart, he would have done what police chiefs of the past always did. He would have jutted his jaws angrily and vowed:

"My men are going to bring the killers in dead or alive. We are going to make the streets of this city safe from the kind of cowardly killers who . . . blah . . . blah . . ."

Instead, he told the truth. He said that the ridiculous availability of handguns is the problem, and that we'll go on having bodies plopping around town until the supply of guns is cut off.

But who wants to hear that, even if it is true? Rochford can preach all he wants, but the more shootings that occur, the more people will wonder: "Maybe I should get a gun, too."

Most people do not want strong gun controls. And those who do, want somebody else's gun controlled, not their own.

The reason for this isn't complicated. The average person is afraid of somebody, even if he doesn't know who. And the person he is afraid of is probably afraid of somebody, too . . .

People in the city are afraid of anybody walking toward them at night, and anybody behind them day or night. They are afraid of the finger on their doorknob, the footsteps on the sidewalk outside the house, the one other person on the high-rise elevator, and even the stranger crawling through the bedroom window.

People in the suburbs are afraid of the car that passes their house more than once, of the young men selling magazine subscriptions, and the squirrel running across the roof.

People in small towns and on farms don't have as much to be afraid of, but they like to have a gun handy for shooting bears, snakes, rabbits, or the Red Chinese Army.

Many blacks fear that gun control is a plot to leave them at the mercy of whites.

Many whites fear that gun control is a liberal plot to leave them at the mercy of blacks.

And liberals fear everybody, with good cause, since nobody likes them anymore.

Congress is afraid of the gun lobby, and the gun lobby is afraid of being put out of business.

Riders on public transportation are afraid of muggers. The muggers are afraid of drunken passengers, who they suspect are police decoys. Drunken passengers are afraid of what their wives will say when they get home.

In this twitchy climate, who will be the first to lay down his gun? You'd have a better chance of getting a law outlawing apple pie.

The way many people now think, or daydream, is reflected in the popularity of a movie that has Charles Bronson, a respectable citizen, going on a binge of slaying street robbers. A pleasant fantasy, but most of the 22 real-life people killed here during the weekend were the victims, not the robbers.

Since disarmament is an unlikely prospect for this country, we must learn to make the best of it.

One approach is to look at the sunny side. Sure, about 75 people were shot in Chicago in one weekend.

But that represents only .002 per cent of the city's population. Feel better?

By the end of the year, 800 people will be murdered in Chicago, which also will set a new modern record. (Henry Aaron isn't the only person having a big year.) And that will be eight times as many people as came over on the Mayflower.

On the other hand, that's only .02 per cent of the population.

And it isn't as if nothing is being done about the gun problem. There is hope. Our City Council wants to pay people for turning in guns.

That's what I like about our aldermen. They figure that whatever the problem is, the way to solve it is with a bribe.

Grass Roots Boycott

Lincoln, Neb. Why is it when "nitrites" are a cancer-causing substance the consumer cannot get them removed from prepared meats? Perhaps the same reason that the consumer cannot remove tobacco from the market place. A definite "death wish" of the American populace.

Other countries, such as Japan, do not have this trouble over money greediness and are a good deal healthier than we are.

An immediate boycott by a grass roots consumer group ought to be enforced against manufacturers who insist on injecting cancer-causing nitrites in their prepared meats.

That would bring them around even though they did lose money for awhile from more spoilage.

Interest In Tax Reform

Lincoln, Neb. While inflation is clearly the number one national concern this year, we hope that voters will not forget the importance of tax reform in solving our economic problems. Even here locally, it is time to examine who really is paying state taxes and whether tax burdens are fairly distributed.

Marge Schlitt, candidate for the 28th Legislative District seat, seems to be the only local candidate who has expressed any interest in working for tax reform. She has stressed the importance of analyzing the recent educational tax changes to make certain that poor people are not bearing the burden of the tax shift. Ms. Schlitt is not wealthy herself and therefore would not have any personal motivation to promote tax schemes aiding the wealthy.

"Nice Run, But The Goal Line Is Over There"

Tactile Maps Help Visually Impaired

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Maps that guide by touch are helping some 20 visually impaired students find their way around the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus this year.

Thanks to the brainstorming of Betty Hoffmann, an orientation counselor for the State Department Services for the Visually Impaired, the project was undertaken and completed this summer.

A graduate student and blind herself, Betty confides that there was a certain amount of selfishness in pushing such a project.

Two summers ago, Betty said, it took six to eight weeks for three instructors to help the visually impaired students learn their way around the UNL campus before classes began.

To Help Cut Time

The maps, she hopes, will shorten considerably the period of campus orientation.

Betty coordinated her efforts with Bob Van Neste of the UNL information office, and Dan Watts, a fifth-year architecture student, in making this multi-textured map series.

What has resulted is a 31-page, 10-inch square booklet with 12 tactile maps — nine of the city campus, two of east campus, and an overview map. The remaining pages are alphabetical and numerical keys in braille with a corresponding cross-index.

Master Relief Maps

Working with aerial maps of the campuses, Watts built master relief maps using cardboard for sidewalks and grassy areas; window screening for buildings and fountains; and coarse sandpaper for streets, parking lots and areas under construction.

Betty credits Watts with a jigsaw puzzle masterpiece of many small and intricate pieces. She says she didn't envy him the job of cutting the one-sixteenth-inch curved cardboard pieces for the "tangled web of sidewalks" on the campus.

Armed Bandits Sought For Omaha S&L Heist

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police and the FBI were looking for three men who held up the North 30th St. office of Commercial Federal Savings and Loan Association late Thursday morning.

Police also believed a woman was involved as the driver of the getaway car.

A cashier said three black men, all armed and wearing ski masks and jumpsuits, walked into the bank about 11:10 or 11:15 a.m., and ordered the receptionist to lay down on the floor. The bandits also ordered the manager to get behind the savings department, the cashier said.

Two of the men then went behind the counter, and emptied the cash drawers. After taking the money, the bandits ordered the cashiers to lay down on the floor.

The trio then ran out of the office, and jumped into a waiting car.

There were no shots fired during the holdup, and the amount of money taken was not immediately known.

Dodge Man Dies From Injuries

Dodge (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Allen Kempf of Dodge died in an Omaha hospital Wednesday of injuries suffered in a one-year accident last Friday on a county road one and one-half south of Dodge.

Kempf, the driver, was thrown from the vehicle. A brother riding in the car escaped with minor injuries. The victim was a son of Mr.

and Mrs. Leonard Kempf of rural Dodge. Also surviving are seven brothers and two sisters.

The death raised Nebraska's 1974 traffic fatality toll to 308, compared with 342 at this time last year.

STUDENT . . . Russell Shong, Betty Hoffman use 'touch' maps of NU campus.

The master maps were then thermo-faxed and bound into 35 booklets. "We're set up to run off more if we need them," Betty noted. She also said the maps can be updated when areas under construction are completed.

But Betty said the whole projects bears a price tag of just over $100 — and an unknown number of volunteer hours.

Omahan Held Without Bond In Wife's Slaying

Omaha (AP) — Mrs. Diana Kay Bartunek, 31, of Omaha died after she was stabbed Wednesday. Her husband was being questioned in the case.

Police said they were holding Edward Bartunek, 33, without bond.

Officers said two of the six

Bartunek children, John 4, and Terry, 2, apparently were in the family car when their mother was stabbed nine times, twice in the throat. Four other children were at school.

Police reports said John and Terry suffered minor cuts.

Officers received a report of a personal injury accident on I-80. Police said that when an investigator opened the door of the car, which had struck a bridge abutment, he found Mrs. Bartunek in the front seat with one of the children in her lap.

Homicide detectives were called and Bartunek was arrested on the highway a short time later.

Patrolman Kenneth Miller, on his way to the scene, spotted Bartunek standing on an overpass.

Phoenix Steel Sales Increase

New York (AP) — Phoenix Steel Corp. of Claymont, Del., announced record sales and earnings for the third quarter and nine months of 1974.

Net income was $7.65 million, or $1.83 a share, compared with a loss in the 1973 quarter of $1.23 million, or 30 cents a share. Sales were $44.96 million, versus $23.17 million last year.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19th
10:00 am & 1: pm

We're having a ceiling clinic to introduce a new, easier way to install Chandelier Ceilings — using the Integrid System by Armstrong. You are invited to come, without any obligation to buy, and see a demonstration, showing step by step how to do it. Suspend below obstructions or right to your old ceiling. Integrid solves all your ceiling problems beautifully, because you can't see its metal grid. And since the big 1'x4' Chandelier tiles have no bevels, seams virtually disappear, creating a continuous wall-to-wall pattern.

Goals, Policies Bylaws Reworked

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Goals and Policies Committee Thursday night reworked its bylaws to insure that a cross-section of the community is represented on its Monitoring Board.

That change in the bylaws was mandated by the City Council, which last month rejected the proposals. That rejection came because there was no requirement insuring that the board membership would represent the city and county's social, economic and geographic distributions.

The council also put thumbs down on the committee's proposed cumulative voting procedure by which each person

Exon Criticizes Marvel For Feeling Frustrated

Hastings (AP) — Gov. J. James Exon Thursday blasted his Republican opponent, State Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, for apparently giving up the battle before election day.

Exon, a strong favorite to come out on top in the Nov. 5 balloting, took Marvel to task for statements the GOP candidate made in an Associated Press story earlier this week.

The AP story quoted Marvel as saying he was frustrated in his campaign, and that he wished he was back teaching at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln.

Speaking to newsmen here on the first leg of a three-day campaign tour through the western and southwestern sections of the state, Exon also criticized President Ford for comments Ford made during a Republican stopover rally in Lincoln Wednesday.

Ford, speaking on the current crisis in the cattle industry, decried the slaughter of calves

Morrison Parking Causes Multi-Car Fender Bender

By United Press International

Former three-term Gov. Frank B. Morrison escaped injury Thursday night when the car he was attempting to park smacked into the rear of another in an unusual accident in front of the University of Nebraska student union.

Morrison, Democratic candidate for attorney general, had gotten back into the car after an aide had difficulty attempting to park it.

Morrison said when he pressed the accelerator down to move the car, it stuck, smacked into the car in front of it, setting off a four-vehicle chain reaction.

The four cars, which belonged to members of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity across the street, received minor damage as did Morrison's car.

Morrison was in Lincoln to cap a day-long campaign trip and speak to University of Nebraska students and campaign workers.

The current Omaha public defender expressed regret over the incident, calling it a "freak one." The investigating police officer at the scene thanked Morrison for his cooperation.

The incident attracted a crowd of some 20 persons, some of whom came up and wished Morrison success in his campaign against Lancaster county Atty. Paul Douglas, the Republican candidate.

"It can happen to anybody," said the owner of one of the cars struck by Morrison. "It's just one of those things."

Birchers Start U.N. Campaign

Members of the John Birch Society are launching their third annual educational campaign to "explain why the U.S. should revoke its membership in the United Nations."

Saying United Nations Day should be "a day of shame," society members are planning to distribute flyers and get petitions to Congress signed during the campaign, which will be Saturday through Thursday.

The society believes the U.N. is a pro-Communist body.

citizens an opportunity to be heard in the planning process. More than 270 people crowded into the County-City Building's cafeteria to do just that Thursday night.

The group re-elected Bob Hans to chair the group and elected Elaine Hammer vice chairperson.

The committee also elected 12 of the 20-member Monitoring Board — the panel which will oversee the entire group.

Under the newly adopted bylaws, which will be resubmitted to the City Council and County Board for approval, only 12 people are elected to the board.

The chairperson and vice chairperson will take two more seats on the panel. The remaining six will be appointed by the chairperson, who will try to balance out representation on that panel, as directed by the bylaws. The six appointments will be subject to confirmation by the committee.

Thirty-four nominees vied for 12 spots on the board, representing such occupations as realtors, homebuilders, laborers, professors, housewives, businessmen, government workers and community leaders.

Elected to two-year terms were Dan Schlitt, Bob Stoddard, Steve Tiwald, Dave Pierson, Bob Peterson and Joe Hampton.

Elected to one-year terms were Ken Thayer, Mike Mumgaard, Donna Polk, Bob Campbell, Leo Beck and Edwin Perry.

Hans said he would nominate the six other members and submit those names to the committee by the group's next meeting. No date has been set.

In other business the committee discussed, but took no action on, the addition of an energy goal and policy statement to the original Goals and Policies document.

That addition was proposed by consultants Barton-Aschman, who are updating the Comprehensive Plan. The consultants' proposed wording came under some criticism from Lincoln Electric System (LES) Administrator Walt Canney.

Barton-Aschman recommended that Lincoln ought to become more active in encouraging and participating in construction of nuclear power plants in Nebraska.

Canney pointed out that Lincoln already has contracted for power from the Cooper Nuclear Station and that three other nuclear plants are planned in the state.

Canney also explained that LES is committed to participating with a number of other utilities in building a multi-million dollar coal-fired complex in southeastern Wyoming.

Greek Catholic Leader Urges Arab Support

Rome (UPI) — The spiritual leader of half a million Greek Catholics in the Middle East says the church must work more actively for the Arab cause.

"We are not sufficiently committed in defense of the Arabs," Patriarch Maximos V Hakim, in Rome for the World Synod of Bishops, told an unofficial round table meeting about Christianity in Arab lands.

"Many bishops in the synod defend the exigencies of their peoples and local cultures," Hakim said. "We Eastern Christians, who are Arabs, must become more conscious of this."

Candidates View Child Services

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska must come to grips with coordinating services for children, the five candidates for three Lincoln seats in the Unicameral agreed Thursday night.

What they couldn't agree upon is how that should be accomplished.

Sen. Wally Barnett called for a two-pronged attack incorporating a single state agency for children and youth and a "children's ombudsman" to serve as a resource for all questions concerning young persons.

But Sen. Harold Simpson of the 46th District said a "super agency" coordinating all social services available in the state, with divisions for the elderly, the handicapped and children, was a better answer. A similar combination is now being tried in Missouri, the unopposed 46th District senator said.

Schlitt Against Lumping

Marge Schlitt, opposing Sen. Roland Luedtke for his 28th District seat, is against "lumping" all social services "because the children are going to get lost."

Without proposing any remedies, Luedtke said "fracturing" between agencies in the state "has got to be stopped."

Jim Kubert, Barnett's opponent for the 26th District, agreed.

The candidates aired their views on that and similar issues at a candidates' forum sponsored jointly by the Lincoln Chapter of the National Organization for Women and the Lincoln Women's Political Caucus.

"We never will be effective — completely effective — until more women are elected to office," said Schlitt, pointing out that 13 Nebraska women were on the primary ballot for Unicameral seats but only three survived that election.

Stiff Challenge

Barnett and Simpson predicted increased funding of the state's Equal Opportunity Commission (EOC) will face a stiff challenge in the 1975 legislative session.

The proposed EOC budget calls for an additional $100,000 and, "We are going to have to fight like mad for it," Barnett said.

"The majority of people in the Legislature feel this commission is only out to cause trouble for businessmen," Simpson said. A "real change of minds" must take place if the EOC is to be effective, he said.

Barnett revealed he currently is drafting a bill which proposes to change the state's rape law. It is a combination of the California and New York laws and calls for revision of the corroboration requirement and admissibility as testimony of a victim's past sexual history.

May Lessen Penalty

Luedtke, chairman of the judiciary committee charged with revising the state's criminal code, said the new law also may lessen the penalty, in hopes of securing more convictions.

Responding to concern that the interim study on credit discrimination perhaps was not undertaken by the most sympathetic legislative committee, all the candidates said they would be willing to introduce legislation in that area.

The credit bill "would have the best chance in the judiciary or miscellaneous subjects committees," said Simpson. "I sure as hell wouldn't want it to go to banking and insurance (where it is now) or public works" which are "stacked with businessmen."

May Be Turnovers

Senatorial hopefuls Schlitt and Kubert warned their listeners not to be too hasty in referring proposed legislation to individual incumbents or committees, because the election may produce many "turnovers."

The candidates also stated their positions on marriage and divorce laws, child support and a variety of issues for and about women.

Dayan, Eban To Tour U.S.

Tel Aviv (UPI) — Former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and former Foreign Minister Abba Eban plan to go on a U.S. speaking tour that will net them thousands of dollars for each speech, a newspaper report said Thursday.

Dayan was scheduled to depart at the end of the month for a tour of 12 universities, the newspaper Ha'aretz said. It said he will be paid between $3,500 and $4,000 for each speech.

Oakland Woman Elected Head Of Rebekah Group

Dove Annette Jacobs of Oakland was elected president of the District Deputy Presidents Association of the Rebekah Assembly of Nebraska at the assembly's annual gathering Thursday.

Other new officers are Ilma Thomas of Alliance, vice president, and Violet Olson of Chappell, secretary-treasurer.

Special guests at the meeting included Hazel Lou Wallace of Shreveport, La., vice president of the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies and Frank L. Shrivies of Portland, Ore., sovereign grand master of the International Order of Odd Fellows.

Receiving special recognition at the session was 97-year-old Lynn Sandilands, 1905-06 president of the Nebraska assembly. She has been a Rebekah member for 75 years.

A&P Claims It May Not Survive Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge was told Thursday that the giant A&P food store chain may not survive unless he sets aside a verdict that produced a $32.7 million award for illegally fixing beef prices.

Attorney Dennis McInerney urged Chief U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter either to set aside the July 25 injury verdict which resulted in the damage award to seven livestock growers, or to grant a new trial.

McInerney said that if the case became a class action it could result in eventual damages of $4 billion annually, trebled to $12 billion under antitrust law, for the period between 1964 and January 1968.

He said the issues raised by his motion were "of vital importance to the company because they are culminated in something that A&P may not be able to survive as a competitive entity if it's allowed to stand."

The California and Colorado growers and livestock feeders who brought the suit claimed A&P had violated antitrust laws by conspiring with other chains to restrain trade in fresh meats on both the wholesale retail levels.

The judge took the matter under submission and set Nov. 21 to hear another motion by the plaintiffs' attorney to allow the case to become a class action.

McInerney said his calculation of potential damages was based on the 20 cent per pound damage figure set by the jury — which he said was excessive — and the fact that some 20 billion pounds of beef are sold annually in the country.

The plaintiffs' attorney, Joseph M. Alioto, said that undisputed testimony showed the loss amounted to 20 cents a pound and that the important matter was whether there had been a violation of the law, not whether the firm faced financial difficulties by the verdict.

The plaintiffs said A&P maintained artificially high retail prices in stores and artificially low prices to packers from 1964 to early 1973. During the trial, Judge Carter restricted any damages to possible losses before 1968.

McInerney charged that it was a prejudicial error for the judge to point out to the jury that A&P had been convicted previously in cases involving "abuse of power."

"It gave the jury the sense that A&P was a bad company, had been convicted before, and more than likely was guilty," said McInerney.

Mayor's Salary, Interest Rates

On City Charter Election Ballot

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln voters will have a chance Nov. 5 to repeal a charter provision requiring the mayor to receive a fatter paycheck than any of his department heads.

The proposed amendment also would require the City Council to set the mayor's salary prior to each term of office. The wage would remain the same during the mayor's four-year term.

Presently, the Charter requires the mayor to be paid more money than any department head — a situation which has caused the bunting up of top officials' salaries at a level just below the mayor's. The mayor is paid $26,875 annually.

Lincoln voters also will face a trio of charter amendments dealing with interest rates charged on municipal bonds.

All Endorsed

All four proposals received the endorsement of the Charter Revision Commission, a citizens panel appointed to make recommendations on charter changes.

The City Council approved the four proposals, which have received the general support of civic and local government leaders.

The issue which has generated the most enthusiasm, although not great interest among the citizenry, is the proposed repeal of the salary provision.

City officials contend that the city would be in a bind if some of the top department heads (like public works, finance and law) resigned those posts. The officials argue that it would be difficult to find qualified replacements at the salaries presently paid those directors.

League Has Reservations

The League of Women Voters has voiced some reservation about the charter change, arguing that the mayor should receive the "best salary." The league believes the mayor's position would be weakened if he were paid less than his subordinates.

Additionally, League members said, the repeal of the provision would remove safeguards which protect the mayor from city council whims.

Charter Revision Commission members and city lawmakers maintain political reprisals by a council would be avoided by having the mayor's salary set prior to each term of office.

Additionally, the officials charge that the individual elected to the executive post determines whether or not the city has strong leadership, not the salary that is paid.

Council Control

City fathers also are hoping voters will look favorably upon three amendments which would give the council more control over financing.

The amendments would:

- remove the 7% interest ceiling on revenue bonds and would allow the council to set the rates prior to the issuance of such bonds.

- remove the 8% interest rate ceiling on special assessment revolving fund bonds and would allow that rate to be determined by the council prior to the issuance of such bonds.
- remove the 6% interest rate ceiling on unpaid special assessment installments and would allow the council prior to the issuance of such bonds.

Interest Rates High

The city currently is in a bind because of the present bond market, where interest rates are above the limits imposed by the charter.

And as a result, the city has had to seriously curtail construction of all new water, sewer, paving and ornamental lighting districts in new subdivisions because no money can be borrowed.

In the meantime, the Public Works Department has, with council approval, set up a priority list of projects to be constructed during the financial crunch.

The main argument for rejecting the amendments would be the lifting of any control over the City Council when it decides to borrow money.

City officials favor the repeal of the interest rate limitations, they say, because no one has a crystal ball to foretell what the future bond market will be.

Carl Spelts Elected President of NACI

By The Associated Press

Carl C. Spelts of Kearney, president of Spelts Lumber Co., was elected president of the Nebraska Association of Commerce & Industry Thursday at the organization's 62nd annual meeting.

He succeeds Stanley A. Michael of Omaha.

Spelts is a past president of the board of trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges, the Kearney and Loup City chambers of commerce and the Kearney State College Foundation.

He is also president of Spelts-Sawmson Implement Co., is a director of the Platte Valley State Bank & Trust Co., at Kearney and is a member of the Kearney State College Foundation.

New NACI vice presidents elected at the Thursday meeting were Eugene A. Conley of Omaha, Walter E. Nolte of Lincoln and Robert E. Thomas of Norfolk.

Re-elected vice presidents were Virgil R. Eihusen of Grand Island; William E. Richards of Holdrege and R. D. Birge Jr. of North Platte.

E. Stanton Miller III of Omaha was re-elected treasurer.

Twelve members of the NACI board were elected or re-elected in earlier balloting by the NACI membership.

They were J. R. Brashears and William W. Cook Jr., both of Beatrice; Ben R. Morris of Omaha, C. O. Emrich of Norfolk; James E. George of Columbus, John W. Schultz Jr., of Grand Island, Eldon H. Marty of Oxford, Vaughn Hickman of Ogallala, Charles R. Hermes of Hastings; L. Martin LeBus of Dakota City; Ivan Paulsen of Cozad and Thomas R. Young of Kearney.

U.S. Personal Income Up 0.8% In September

Washington (AP) — Personal income of Americans increased at an annual rate of $8.8 billion in September, a bigger increase than in August, the Commerce Department reported.

The September increase of 0.8% was about average during the previous 12 months. Total personal income was at an annual rate of almost $1.2 trillion, the department said.

Personal income in August had been reported up by $6.7 billion, a gain of 0.6% over the previous month.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

"To look at the universe through the eyes of an astrologer demands more than the exercise of logic and reason. It requires the vision and imagination of the poet; for whom language has ever to be created anew. The language of the astrologer is entirely one of symbols — and their meaning is inexhaustible." — Henry Miller.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Movement, variety, travel — these are highlighted. Your ability to comprehend various cultures also comes into play. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Look in out-of-way places. Be willing to make discoveries and to profit from them. Open up learning process!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friendship and the borrowing of funds do not mix, not well. One who claims to have "great bargain" for you could be misinformed or part of a scheme. Whichever, protect your own interests. Some of your hopes, wishes require definite revision.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You learn difference between desire and necessity. Lesson need not be "hard." What occurs is in form of realization rather than revelation. Pisces, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture. Accent is on contracts, alliances, marriage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may find that "doing something practical" is not practical at all. Now you must do what you believe in, must be forceful, even resentful. Start, if necessary, to clear away debris. Get engines going and ball rolling and let others know you mean business.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotional involvement is more likely now than in recent past. You are "bouncing back" or "on the rebound." You are vulnerable. Key is to enjoy flow of creative ideas but also to find constructive outlet for energies. Aries, Libra could play significant roles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Legal ties, commitments, home or property payments, purchases appear to be magnified. Listen to advice, suggestions — but in final stretch — make up your own mind. Leo, Aquarius persons could be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some relatives may be misinformed. Know it and maintain balance, humor. Avoid scattering efforts. Check directions, instructions and reservations rather than rumor and factual information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Libra message for avoid hint. You may have too many irons in fire. Key now is to check expenditures. Be a comparison shopper. Take nothing for granted where money is concerned. And count your change!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family member may have problem and you could be expected to share it. Cycle is high and your judgment will be on target. Know it and be confident. Get to source. Real issues are clouded with element of wishful thinking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep promise to one who is confined to home, hospital. Catch up on reading material. You'll be asked questions! Basic research is more important than in past. You may be asked to speak for group, organization.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be reading too far — what you seek could actually be close at hand. Seek "acres of diamonds" in your own backyard. Accent is on family discussions, agreements, reconciliations. Be receptive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are now in position of knowing what you want — and that is a big step. Key is to proceed toward goal despite side issues, detours. Professional superior has plan which is not practical. Get views on record, but be tactful.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have compassion, inspire trust in others and are capable of interpreting moods and comprehending subtle nuances. Libra, Aries persons play important roles in your life. Major change is upcoming — involves travel and member of opposite sex. A simple, that won't be for long! (Learn "The Truth About Astrology." Send birthdate (for our survey) and 75 cents to Omnia Booklet, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90033. You open door to fascinating study and self-revelation!)

To Them, It Seems Like Buckingham Palace

By PATTY BEUTLER

For Joe Hacker, Mahoney Manor is sitting by his window in winter-time and watching someone else scoop the snow.

For his wife, Bernice, "It's a lot of satisfaction for out loved ones to know we're well taken care of."

The eight-story high-rise at 4241 N. 61 in Havelock — Lincoln Housing Authority's (LHA) first public housing project for low-income elderly — houses some 140 residents in its 120 apartment units.

All tenants must meet federal-set low-income guidelines which allow a maximum annual income of $4,000 for a single person and $4,600 for a couple. Assets for an individual or married couple must be limited to $10,000, excluding furniture and automobile.

Rental rates represent 25% of a tenant's gross income. For some, payments may be as low as $20 a month, while others pay as much as $70.

Don Weitzel, director of tenant services for LHA, visited with more than 500 people when screening potential occupants. Many lived in run-down, dilapidated homes, he said, because they were unable to do the maintenance themselves and couldn't afford to have it done.

Rising rents, he added, were making things financially difficult for people on fixed incomes.

"I don't know where a fellow would go to find anything better," reflected Fred Schroeder.

"I think of it as Buckingham Palace," his wife Fern laughed.

"My husband was always a farmer before so this is a real change for us."

Mrs. Frances Boekel finds Mahoney Manor "like living in a plush hotel, except you do all the work."

"It's relaxation in our lives, to come to this lovely place," said nonagenarian Bertha Wilson, who lives with her 78-year-old brother Lloyd.

The Wilsons first lived in a cottage, but had to leave that because they couldn't care for it. A move to an apartment, Miss Wilson said, became too expensive, with increasing medical bills.

"People are here because of a need for a place, a home they could come to," said Miss Wilson one of the Manor's oldest residents. Her concern now is for those elderly who are not so lucky as to have such a place.

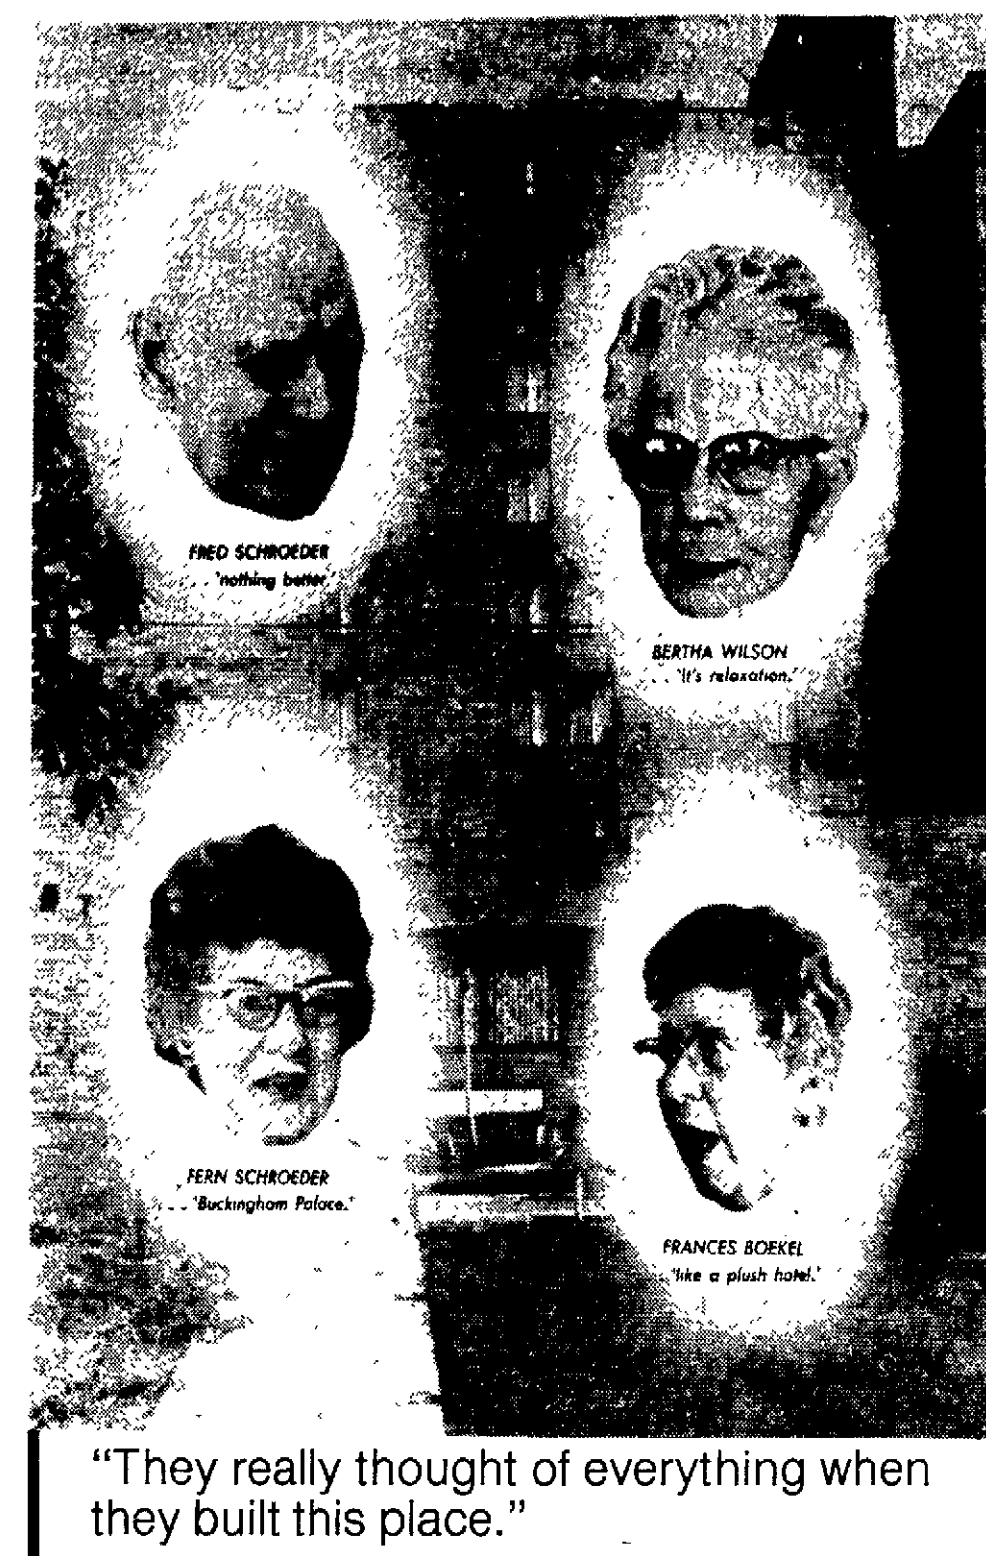

"We're all really neighborly here," Mrs. Hacker said. "If we haven't seen someone come out of their apartment for a while, we notify the manager. It's nice to know someone is looking out for you."

Mrs. Schroeder confirmed the feeling of security she has in her Manor apartment. "Before when Fred had to go to the hospital, I was scared to stay in the house by myself."

Now she knows that the outside Manor doors are locked at 10 p.m. (residents have keys) and she has nothing to fear.

There's financial security also for most of the tenants who pay rent on a sliding fee scale according to income.

Mrs. Schroeder is relieved at

"They really thought of everything when they built this place."

having only two monthly bills — rent and telephone. "I was so tired of all those bills before. They really got to be a burden."

"And then we had to worry about where the money was going to come from," sighed Mrs. Boekel.

"If we weren't here, we'd probably be in a dire (financial) situation," Mrs. Schroeder added.

Many of the Manor residents feel that the Havelock location is ideal. "There could never be a place quite so handy," Mrs. Schroeder said, pointing out the stores and churches close by.

And the residents interviewed reported feeling no animosity from the Havelock community. "When you go downtown (Havelock) and step off the curb, traffic stops both ways," observed Mrs. Boekel.

Garbage chutes, laundry facilities and alarm switches at bedside and in bathrooms are special features these elderly tenants appreciate.

"They really thought of everything when they built this place," Mrs. Hacker confirmed.

Community rooms, game and craft areas provide residents with plenty of space for socializing.

"Then there's the private side of our lives," said Mrs. Schroeder. "Our apartment is quiet and roomy and we don't hear a sound."

Consumers Need Nutrition Education

By GRACIA MCANDREW
Star Staff Writer

Everybody believes in good nutrition. Right?

Of course. But Thomas Purcell, director of marketing for George Hormel Company, Austin, Minn., contends that the average consumer — although he believes in good nutrition — doesn't actually know what it is.

Purcell spoke Thursday afternoon on nutritional labeling at the two-day Nebraska Food Industry Symposium.

According to the marketing director, Hormel started nutritional research on its products four years ago, when there were no government regulations making nutritional labeling mandatory.

"Nutrition was in the news and in the customers' minds," Purcell said. "At the time nutrition became good news, hot dogs became bad news."

"Hot dogs got a bad name and some of them should have a bad name," he said, referring to undesirable additives found in some brands of hot dogs.

"We had the first meat label telling the customer what was contained in the hot dogs," he said. "But we also told the customer that they (the hot dogs) don't have any Vitamin A or C and no calcium in them."

"We had the first label that told the consumer what we didn't have in the product."

Purcell also explained that Hormel has spent two-thirds of its advertising budget on 60 second radio spots, designed to inform the public on nutrition.

"Many nutritionists felt that we were being very elementary. We found that the customer is all for nutrition, but he doesn't know anything about it," he said.

Using hot dogs as an example, Purcell pointed out that in spite of the labeling, hot dog sales declined.

And, although the company was awarded two out of five gold medals from the Society for Nutritional Education for consumer education through advertising, Purcell emphasized that the company still was not getting through to the consumer.

"Then we decided to show the ingredient percentages on the label," he continued. "But we were still boring the people. We weren't getting the sales person going."

When that didn't work the company decided to change the aesthetic design of the label because "it was boring. It showed no warmth, no promise of flavor."

"We kept the nutritional information, but we put kids on the hot dog labels, because kids eat them," he said.

But again in spite of the label changes and efforts in educating the public, the hot dog "business was lousy."

As Purcell sees it, the problem lies in the nutrition language.

"When lawyers, doctors and dentists talk to each other, only they know what they're saying," he cited as comparison. "When nutritionists and dieticians talk about calories and units of energy, they have their own private club.

"But 99.9% of the women can't understand it."

As a possible solution to the problem, Purcell proposed a three-point program which would include a revision of nutrition language and better government and industry involvement.

"First, we have to develop a new nutrition language with new symbols," he suggested. "We also need new nutrition curriculum and teaching methods in the primary and secondary schools."

"We (representatives of the Hormel Company) have sat in on classes. We know what is going on and we still had a hell of a time understanding."

Purcell also noted that instead of jumping feet first into funding programs on nutrition, the government should work first with industry and educators in developing viable plans for consumer education.

"Nutrition labeling as it exists is not meaningful," he concluded.

Wants No Wheels At Wedding

DEAR ABBY: I am being married soon. My fiance's favorite brother, who was asked to be our best man, has just undergone his third operation. He will be out of the hospital in time for our wedding, but he'll be in a wheelchair for several months.

My fiance insists that his brother be in the wedding party, wheelchair or no wheelchair.

Abby, there will be over 500 people at the wedding and reception. I'm having a professional photographer take pictures of the whole thing—even movies—and I just know that wheelchair will ruin everything. Imagine, the best man going down the aisle in a wheelchair! I'm afraid people will laugh.

Please don't get me wrong, Abby. I love my future brother-in-law and am sorry for what he's had to go through, but I think someone else should take his place as best man. Am I wrong for wanting everything to be perfect?

PHOENIX BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: If by "perfect" you mean appearances over the feelings of your fiance and his favorite brother, you are indeed wrong. A best man in a wheelchair (or for that matter, ANY member of wedding ceremonies. And it's not apt to be) is not unique in the annals of wedding ceremonies. And it's not apt to be laughed at.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 13-year-old girl. I'm writing this for my brother (he's 12) and myself because we both have the same problem. It's our father. He refuses to take a vacation. Dad says he can't spare the time. He's in the insurance business and he makes a good living, but what good is the money if he works himself to death? Mom is a housewife. We live in a nice home in the suburbs, have two cars, nice clothes and my brother and I go to a good camp.

Mom and Dad haven't had a vacation together since they've been married. Other families take a vacation every year. All our dad knows is work. Is there some way we can get him to take a vacation?

We're not asking for a trip ourselves. We'd be happy if he took Mom and went someplace for a rest. Can you solve our problem?

MILWAUKEE KIDS

DEAR KIDS: You might tell Dad that because you love him you want him to live a long time, so he'd better take care of his health. Being in the insurance business he knows that all work and no play may make a lot of jack, but it also makes Jack a poor insurance risk.

DEAR ABBY: Sixteen years ago I read a letter in your column urging readers to remove the doors from stored and abandoned iceboxes and refrigerators so children couldn't crawl into them and become accidentally trapped. (You called them "potential coffin.")

I remembered that letter so vividly because the year before, I had lost a precious four-year-old grandson in such a senseless accident. Following his death, his mother (my daughter-in-law) had psychiatric treatment for a year to overcome her recurring nightmares and feelings of guilt.

I read the same warning in your column three more times over the years.

Yesterday I read a small item in our local newspaper. A seven-year-old girl, who had been missing for 12 hours, was found dead in an abandoned icebox stored in the basement of a playmate's home. During a game of hide and seek, the child had crawled into the icebox, was trapped, and eventually died of suffocation.

Abby, will please warn your readers again? It may save a young life.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: I will. But most people are strange. They think the weird things about which they read can never happen to them.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this away without answering because it's no joke. I'm a guy whose nipples protrude very, very conspicuously. They show through my shirts, and people are always making remarks like, "Hey, you need a bra." However, the fact is, my chest is not unusually large — just my nipples.

Several years ago I read that mothers who wanted to breast-feed their babies were advised to pull on their nipples so they would protrude, and their infants could nurse more easily. I remember now that when I was a kid (in about the sixth grade) I had a habit of doing that unconsciously while I studied.

I would appreciate it if you would consult some authority on how to get my nipples back to normal, if it's possible.

SELF-CONSCIOUS

DEAR SELF: Two suggestions: Cover them with tape to flatten. Or have the protrusions surgically reduced by a plastic surgeon.

minor suit losers. South must therefore revise his original plan of play.

He should cash the A-K of diamonds, discarding a club, and ruff a diamond. He should then play a club to the ace and lead the nine of diamonds. When West covers with the ten, South does not ruff it but discards a club from dummy instead. He allows for the possibility of East's having started with three diamonds rather than four.

As it happens, this one cautious play averts defeat. South eventually ruffs two clubs in dummy and takes the marked trump finesse to round out his twelve tricks.

In effect, South winds up ruffing two clubs and a diamond in dummy instead of two diamonds and a club, as originally planned. Declarer simply tailors his play to match the unexpected 3-0 trump break.

(c) King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Yesterdady I read a small item in our local newspaper. A seven-year-old girl, who had been missing for 12 hours, was found dead in an abandoned icebox stored in the basement of a playmate's home. During a game of hide and seek, the child had crawled into the icebox, was trapped, and eventually died of suffocation.

A fine declarer plans his course of play at the start of a hand, but at the same time stands ready to revise that plan if there are unexpected developments.

Take this deal where West leads a spade. When dummy appears, South should assume he will make the slam. He plans to win the spade, draw two rounds of trumps (assuming a normal 2-1 division), cash the A-K of diamonds, discarding a club from dummy, and either then or later concede a club trick. His three trumps in dummy are available to ruff his club and diamond losers.

But when he wins the spade and plays a heart to the ace, he learns that East has all the missing trumps. This means he cannot afford to draw the outstanding trumps (even with the aid of a finesse) as he would then have only two trumps left in dummy to ruff his three FRESHLY FRIED . . . Weaver chips roll on towards the packaging area.

American Snackers Choose Chips

50,000 POUNDS . . . of potatoes bound for chips roll off the truck bed.

Almost as if it harbored the plague, he jerked one clear package of potato chips from the twin pack, held it away from his body and said with a grimace, "Just look at that."

The contempt hung in the air. But Russell Ritzman likes potato chips — the right kind, the kind with the holes, the kind made in Lincoln, Nebraska. The Weaver Potato Chip Co. kind.

The distasteful "just-look-at-that-kind" of potato chip package, sitting in the corner of his Lincoln office, was a competitor's brand — not quite up to the standards of Ritzman, a 20-year Weaver chipman.

Potato chips are more American than apple pie. Invented accidentally in 1853 by an American Indian, George Crum, potato chips are now a part of the American way of snacking from Miami to California.

Crum, chef for a Saratoga Springs, N.Y., hotel became angered when a customer asked for thinner-than-usual French fries. The hefty Indian testily whittled the potato into extremely-thin slices, cooked them in boiling fat and salted them. The delighted customer raved, and the potato chip was soon imitated around the country.

More than one-hundred years after Crum's first chip, the chip-making process has been taken over by technology, but the basic steps remain the same — slice, fry, salt.

And, in honor of national Potato Chip Month, Ritzman, vice president of the Weaver Potato Chip Co., gave us a special tour through the chip-fragrant plant which supplies potato chips to a six-state area.

Weaver chips, all 4 flavors, are normally sliced from Nebraska-grown potatoes. The potatoes, which come mainly from the Alliance area, have been in the breeding process for 20 years; and today's potatoes, have special qualities — less water, shallow eyes, low sugar content and paper-thin skins which easily rubbed off.

Each hour, more than 8,000 pounds of potatoes flow along a conveyor system which washes, peels, slices, fries, salts, flavors and bags them. The only completely hand-done operation is stashing the chip sacks into cartons for shipment to restaurants and stores across the midwest.

The Weaver Potato Chip Company actually began in a kettle in Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Weaver's Kitchen in 1932. Soon it moved to the basement of the family home, and in 1944 the first real plant was built in Lincoln.

Now the company, in a 10-year-old plant in South Lincoln's Industrial Park, has a second production facility in Denver, Colorado, which turns out popcorn, cheese puffs, and party mix according to Ritzman, a former math professor, who met Mr. Weaver during the Korean War era.

"Today the average American consumes about eight pounds of chips a year, said Ritzman. And the Detroit area leads the nation with an average 12 pound per person chip-smacking population.

But like everything else, chips are going up in price, and the whole industry is in trouble, according to Ritzman.

During the wage and price freeze, the government decontrolled raw agricultural products, but kept the lid on other prices. So, the main ingredients of chips — potatoes and vegetable oil — rose by 400% and 500%, respectively. However, the price of potato chips remained the same.

Though chip prices have been rising during the last year, the companies haven't recouped from that initial blow, Ritzman explained.

The industry, nationwide, is down about 25% in tonnage this year, he pointed out.

However, Americans have yet to abandon their chips completely, and in Lincoln the fragrant salty smell continues to filter down the hallways and through the windows of the Weaver plant.

Don't Scoop The Dip

"Dip, don't scoop" when immersing chips into your favorite dip, according to chip dip experts, who say that the proper dipping method is straight down into the dip.

"Dippers who scoop up the dip are likely to break off a portion of the chip and wind up with their fingers in the bowl," say the potato chip people.

Here are some new recipes for the dipping dippers.

Egg-Avocado Dip

1 cup cottage cheese
6 T sour cream
½ medium avocado, chopped
4 hard cooked eggs, minced
2T sweet pickle relish
¼ cup chopped celery
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. garlic salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Blend cottage cheese, sour cream and avocado. Combine eggs, sweet pickle relish, celery and seasonings. Chill. Makes about 1-½ cups dip.

"The Little Mermaid" Dip

¼ cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream
1 can (6-½ oz.) tuna, drained
¼ tsp. curry
¼ tsp. tarragon
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup Danish cheese shredded (Harvarti, Esrom or Tybo)

Cut tuna into tiny pieces. In medium bowl, blend mayonnaise and sour cream together. Add tuna, curry, tarragon and salt. Then add Danish cheese, blend well. Refrigerate 1 hour. Makes about 2 cups.

Turtles Cause Suit

A suit claiming that two members of a Lincoln family contracted salmonella from two turtles has been filed in U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

The suit was filed by James Tuller, his wife Cynthia and his daughter Diana against Gators of Miami, Fla. The suit claims the turtles were infected with salmonella when they purchased them from a Lincoln retail outlet.

Cynthia and Diana Tuller contracted the infection from the turtles and Cynthia incurred permanent injury, the suit claims. The suit seeks $25,000.

New Food Stamp Suit: People Still Uninformed

As promised, another suit claiming that the government is failing to tell persons how to obtain food stamps has been filed in U.S. District Court.

The suit is similar to one filed earlier, but involves additional plaintiffs. Now named as plaintiffs are the Mexican-American Commission, the Chicano Awareness Center, the Nebraska

Indian Commission, and Indian Center Industries, Inc.

The suit claims that state officials are not complying with federal law that low-income households must be informed of the availability and benefits of food stamps and insure that eligible households participate.

The suit claims that 246,157 persons in the state are eligible for food stamps, but only 46,191 receive them.

The first suit was filed by Donald Sjostrum, a disabled welfare recipient from Alliance, the Nebraska Indian Commission, the Western Nebraska Indian Council and the Mexican-American Commission.

Marmosets Threatened By Infection

Omaha (AP) — Officials say an apparent virus infection is threatening to wipe out the family of golden lion marmosets at Omaha's Henry Doorly Zoo.

Of the zoo's five marmosets, the breeding female and a female born in May have died, and the adult male is seriously ill. Dr. Lee Simmons, zoo director, said the adult male is in an oxygen chamber and its chances of surviving are poor.

The marmosets are members of a primate species believed facing extinction. The Omaha zoo was one of three recently sharing a national award from the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums for success in breeding the marmosets, natives of Brazil.

Simmons said if herpes virus is the cause, as is suspected, the young male and female undoubtedly have been exposed to it. He said there is no drug effective in countering the virus in marmosets.

Herpes was symptomatically diagnosed in the first marmoset, which died last week. A necropsy on the adult female, which died this week, showed death apparently was caused by an infection from thorny-headed worms.

Efforts are being made to determine what type of herpes is involved. This could give a clue to where it may have come from.

If it is the kind that causes cold sores and fever blisters in humans, it might have come from someone around the zoo.

Reserve Bank Chief To Speak To Economists

The president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, David P. Eastburn, will address a joint dinner meeting of the Nebraska Council on Economic Education and Nebraska Economics and Business Association at 6:30 p.m. Friday, at the Sheraton Motor Inn.

The Nebraska Economics and Business Association will meet Friday and Saturday. The association is made up of economists and business specialists who meet annually to consider current economic and business issues.

Hain Faces Five Counts Of Arson

Falls City (AP) — Five counts of first-degree arson have been filed against a Humboldt man in connection with a number of fires in the Humboldt area since early July.

Charged in Richardson County Court Wednesday was Roger Hain, 37.

Bond was set at $10,000, and Hain was ordered to the Nebraska Institute of Psychological Evaluation in Omaha to undergo tests.

A preliminary hearing was set Nov. 13.

Hain is charged with attempting to set fire to a vacant hotel in Humboldt on five separate occasions, and with starting a fire at the American Legion Club in Humboldt. Hain is also accused of setting fire to a stubble field near Humboldt.

Law Forbidding Felons To Carry Hand Guns Upheld By Court

By The Associated Press
The state Supreme Court handed down a decision Thursday upholding the constitutionality of the law which prohibits convicted felons from carrying hand guns.

Willie Brooks Haynes of Omaha claimed the law was unconstitutional because it discriminates against felons. But the court, agreeing with a decision of the Douglas County District Court, said the law did not discriminate.

Writing for an undivided court, Judge Harry Spencer said "The classification created is not only reasonable and practicable but also necessary for the protection of society."

Haynes also asked the court to overturn his conviction because he claimed he was denied the effective assistance of an attorney.

The court said that Haynes' lawyer, whom it did not name, could not "be criticized as ineffectual on this record."

The court upheld another decision in which Benji L. Temple of Omaha claimed errors by his trial attorney led to his conviction. Temple was convicted of sodomy by the Douglas County District Court.

They said that references to polygraph tests prejudiced the jury during his trial. But his lawyer did not object to the references and did not move for a mistrial. The Supreme Court said the objections should have been taken up in the lower court. And it was too late to bring them up after the cause reached the Supreme Court.

The decision also upheld the state's sodomy law.

Temple claimed it was vague and indefinite and invaded the right of privacy.

In other rulings Thursday, the court:

- upheld a Lancaster County District Court decision which denied a writ of habeas corpus to Richard Eugene Preltman
- affirmed a Butler County District Court decision which upheld the will of Jesse Garfield Margaret Loomis, a cousin of Miss Garfield's from Indianapolis, Ind., contested the will
- upheld a Douglas County District Court decision which denied workmen's compensation damages to Euell Marion, a former employe of American Smelting and Refining Co. in Omaha. He claimed that lead at the plant was absorbed into his body and caused hypertension and gout
- upheld the Douglas County District Court conviction of Juanita Mae Gilpin of Omaha. She was convicted of larceny from a person

Lincoln Drug Commission's Goals Approved By LCAD

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD) board unanimously approved Thursday the Lincoln Drug Commission's proposed goals for the coming year.

Although no priority system for the eight specific goals has been established, each bears a hoped-for completion date, said Eric McMasters, LCAD drug coordinator.

The major goals and objectives include:

—Increasing the city's live-in drug treatment and rehabilitation capacity by 25% and outpatient treatment and rehabilitation services by 10%. This has been met, in part, by an annex to Full Circle; the annex now is being remodeled.

—Helping the criminal justice system come to grips with the concept of pre-trial diversion.

—Improving, through training, the quality of drug abuse prevention efforts in all schools in Lancaster County and youth organizations.

—Providing training experiences for persons in drug abuse fields of prevention and treatment and rehabilitation.

—Implementing a management by objectives style of operations for LDC, involving at least 75% of its members.

—Providing technical assistance for the creation of prevention-oriented projects, possibly through positive peer programs.

—Developing a comprehensive drug abuse prevention and treatment plan for the city.

—Developing programs aimed at helping adults understand current drug abuse-related issues. To this end, the Northeast Kiwanis Club has developed a taped slide presentation dealing with drug problems and alternatives available in Lincoln; it will be made available Nov. 1.

The goals are community goals established by LDC and its parent LCAD, recognized by the state as the official drug and alcoholism planning bodies for Lincoln, McMasters said.

In other action, Bob Adams, LCAD executive director, apprised the board of the current status of the detoxification center, scheduled to be in operation Jan. 1. It will be housed in the Salvation Army facility at 7th and P St. under contract between LCAD and the City Council.

He said that negotiations for establishing police procedures for advising public intoxicants of their option of spending time in the detoxification center or jail are continuing with police and city officials and may soon include representatives of the courts and probation office.

The center will provide a three-day detoxification program plus referrals to appropriate community agencies.

"It is not just a drying out joint", Adams said, emphasizing that the police cooperation will apply only to public intoxicants, not those involved in other crimes.

McLouth Profits Up
Detroit (AP) — McLouth Steel Corp. earnings for third-quarter earnings were $6.4 million compared with $2.9 million during the period in 1973. Sales climbed to $131.5 million from $89.8 million in the same period a year earlier.

Symposium On Motivation Slated Nov. 7, 8

Is there any social danger resulting from psychologists trying to advocate certain concepts or ideas in managing people?

Willard F. Day of the University of Nevada psychology department will discuss that question in the 1974-75 Symposium on

Sorority Plans To Teeter-Totter

There will be lots of ups and downs this weekend for members of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Sorority members are planning a 65-hour teeter-totter marathon to raise money for their charity projects during the Motivation Nov. 7 and 8 at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, 33rd and Holdrege.

Sponsored by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln psychology department, the symposium is open to the public and follows the theme of methods and philosophical foundations of psychology as a science.

The first session next month will attract NU students and psychologists, as well as some from across the U.S. who are studying theory and conducting research in human behavior, according to James K. Cole, UNL psychology professor and clinical training program director.

Joseph F. Rychlak of Purdue University's psychological science department will speak Nov. 7 on "psychological science as a humanist views it." On Nov. 8, Amedeo Giorgi of the Duquesne University psychology department will discuss "phenomenology and foundational problems of psychology." And Klaus F. Riegel of the University of Michigan psychology department will talk about "developmental dialecticism."

The Nebraska Symposium on Motivation is in its 23rd year, Cole said. The second session of this year's symposium will be on Feb. 27 and 28, 1975.

Bike-A-Thon For Cancer Fight Sunday

Bicyclists of all ages will be riding 30 miles Sunday to help raise money for the American Cancer Society's program of research, education and service.

The event, beginning at 1 p.m., is the Lancaster County Cancer Society's annual Bike-A-Thon. The route begins at Sherman Field in Sawyer Snell Park.

Six popcorn poppers will be awarded to the top money raisers. Last year's Bike-A-Thon brought in about $750 and more riders and sponsors are expected this year, according to publicity chairman Carol Walker.

Registration forms can be obtained from any Lincoln junior or senior high school or the Lancaster County Cancer Society office, 4740 A.

Safety Clinic Set For Moto Cross Bicycle Riders

A free demonstration and safety clinic for Moto Cross bicycle riders of all ages will be held at four locations next week. Bicycles should be brought to clinic sites.

The locations and times are: Belmont Center, Tuesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.; Easterday Recreation Center craft room, Tuesday from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.; Auld Recreation Center, Wednesday from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.; and Meadow Lane School, date to be announced.

Sponsors are Mr. Bike in Belmont Plaza and the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department.

Elder Gallery Benefactor Of NWU Dies

Word has been received of the death of Edith Dimmit Elder, Nebraska Wesleyan University alumnus and benefactor. She died Sept. 22 in San Jose, Calif.

A native of Wymore, she was a 1908 graduate of Wesleyan and was awarded an honorary degree from the college in 1960.

The college's Elder Gallery in the Fine Arts Center is named in honor of her family. A major gift from Mrs. Elder initiated the construction of the center.

Mrs. Elder was a musician, painter, linguist and author. She taught both French and Spanish at the University of the Pacific and San Jose State College, retiring in 1950.

She is survived by a sister, Dorothy Sitton of Sacramento.

POSTCARD

Delaplane

San Francisco — Off to Perry's on a sunny day. Friday is the day Alimony Row lines up and Seamus, the bartender, is a busy man.

The man on the barstool said: "What really burned me was the eels. I was raising eels in an aquarium, see? Well, I sent back to the house to pick up some of my clothes. The aquarium was empty."

"I said: 'Hey, where are my eels?'"

"She said: 'I flushed them down the toilet.'"

"Seamus, better give me another. The same, only drier."

I am off to the mysterious Sea of Cortez. Where the Sonora desert — brown and dangerous — comes down to the blue, blue water.

The man in the camera store said: "Here's the newest thing. When these two images come together, you are in focus. When these two needles come together, there is enough light to shoot."

It cost a pretty penny — and we're fighting inflation (WIN) — but noblesse oblige. If you're going to see the Sea, you've got to bring home pictures.

Cameras nowadays are made by the Japanese. A long way from the box Brownie of my Boy Scout tour.

The Brownie was a square box — the black paper that covered it tended to peel back at the corners. We stuck it on again with flour-and-water paste.

There was only one shutter speed. The Eastman people made one "O" opening. You pressed the lever — click! Lo, you had the magic effect of light on silver salts.

There were no needles. No focusing. Bless your heart, everything was in focus. It was a simple life. I got a merit badge for photography.

The man on the barstool at Perry's said: "Now I'm trying to get custody of the dogs. They really are my dogs and there's only a hundred of that breed left in the world."

"Fortunately, they're too big to go down the john or they'd be down with the eels."

The man in the camera store said: "It's fully automatic. It reads the distance for you. It reads the light for you. When you press the button, it computes your picture needs and that's it."

I went over the camera. There are 16 options you have, all to be set, just to get the camera in the mood to be automatic.

He said: "Naturally, it requires some work on your part."

"Hold still!" said the photographer. He came out from under the black cloth and stood beside the camera. It was on a tripod and was bound at the edge with shined brass.

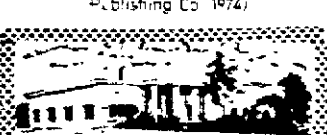

Poof! There was a flash of light. A cloud of pungent smoke rose from the flash powder pan he held in his hand.

I have the picture. The fourth grade, frozen forever in sepia. Wearing short pants. No indication that we would grow up to be President — as the teacher said any boy in the room could do.

That's probably just as well, considering what's happening to Presidents these photo finish days.

Oakland (Again) Captures Series

OAKLAND (UPI) — Joe Rudi, one of Oakland's few quiet men, powered the battling and boisterous A's to their third straight World Series title Thursday night when he hit a leadoff home run off ace reliever Mike Marshall in the seventh inning for a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Rudi, who has labored quietly and comparatively unobtrusively alongside such outpoken stars as Reggie Jackson and Sal Bando, belted Marshall's first pitch in the seventh deep into the stands in left field.

The winning homer, which gave the A's a four games to one victory in the Series, followed a six-minute delay caused when fans showered litter from the outfield seats onto the field.

At one point, two of the Dodgers outfielders, Bill Buckner and Jim Wynn, walked to the infield to seek refuge, and Marshall and Manager Walt Alton joined them in a conference with the umpires.

Then play resumed. Marshall, who to that point had not been scored on in seven innings in this Series, threw Rudi a high fast ball for his first pitch.

There was never any doubt once Rudi swung, and the ball cleared the left field fence easily, touching off another shower of debris from some in the sellout crowd of 49,347.

After that, Oakland had just one brief scare, but it ended almost as quickly as it started.

Buckner led off the eighth inning for Los Angeles with a single to right center, and when the ball eluded centerfielder Bill North, Buckner kept right on going.

But Jackson retrieved the ball near the fence, threw it to second baseman Dick Green, and Green's perfect throw to Bando at third nailed Buckner.

There was, as usual when the A's are involved, a touch of irony to their third straight championship, a string of success that must earn this maverick team and its maverick owner, Charlie Finley, a lasting chunk of baseball history.

The Oakland pitchers, in order, were Vida Blue, John "Blue Moon" Odom and Rollie Fingers.

Blue was angered when he was lifted for Odom with two out in the seventh, and did not wait around to greet his relief. Two years ago, after the A's had clinched their first pennant, Blue and Odom had a fight in the clubhouse.

Last Friday, the day before this first-ever all-California Series began, Odom and Fingers fought in the clubhouse at Los Angeles. Thursday night, Fingers wound up saving Odom's victory.

Omaha — It may have been only one small step for Larry Rugg, Randy Johnson and Pete Allman here Thursday, but it was one giant leap for Lincoln high school tennis.

Lincoln High's Rugg, Southeast's Johnson and East's Allman — all three of whom gained pre-tourney seeds — qualified for Friday's semifinals in the State Class A Tennis Tournament at Dewey Park.

Looming bigger than the individual achievements is the likely prospect of a state team championship, which could land in Lincoln for the first time in 17 years.

Southeast commanded the first-day lead with eight points. The Knights, who also qualified their doubles team for Friday's semifinals, can clinch the championship with two more victories out of a possible four Friday matches.

Each match win nets two points. Therefore, Southeast could finish the tournament with 16 points. Lincoln High, in a 3-way tie for second place with six points, could reach a maximum total of 10 points if its top-seeded Rugg wins his semifinal match and emerges as singles champion.

This was Fingers' sixth save in three World Series, also a record.

What this Series amounted to was another case of Oakland nibbling its opponents to death, winning three times by 3-2 scores, a fact that did not go unnoticed by the Dodgers—a team which won more regular season games than any club in the majors.

"We won 102 ball games during the regular season by executing," said Wynn. "We didn't execute in the World Series."

All together, four of the five Series games ended 3-2 since the Dodgers scored their only win in the second game by that score, too. This was the A's ninth one-run victory in three years of Series play.

The Most Valuable Player award and the automobile that goes along with it was voted to Fingers, who pitched in all four A's victories, a total of 9 1-3 innings, saving two of them.

There was also strong support, however, for Rudi, the hero of the final game, and Green, the unheralded second baseman who took part in six double plays, setting a World Series record.

"No one deserved it more than Green," Finley said admiringly of the 33-year-old veteran, despite Green's 0-for13 batting record.

Oakland started as if it would take all the drama out of the game in a hurry.

The A's jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first when Bert Campaneris lined a single to left, was forced by North who stole second and went to third on catcher Steve Yeager's overthrow, and rode home on a sacrifice fly by Bando.

Ray Fosse, who hit only four home runs during the season, slammed Don Sutton's second pitch in the second inning for a homer to make it 2-0.

But then Sutton, who had won 12 games in a row with brilliant stretch run pitching, shut down the Oakland offense.

The Dodgers, who wasted a two-on opportunity in the second, caught up against Blue in the sixth.

Tom Paciorek, batting for Sutton, doubled to leftcenter, and Dave Lopes was walked on a 3-2 pitch. Buckner sacrificed the runners along before Paciorek scored on a sacrifice fly by Wynn, and Lopes came in with the tying run on Steve Garvey's ground single to left.

That was the only RBI of the Series for Garvey, who finished as the leading batter at .381 on 8-for-21.

By winning the Series for the third year in a row, Oakland joined the New York Yankees—who won five between 1949 and 1953 and four from 1936 to 1939—as the only teams in history to win three or more titles in succession.

"That's pretty good company," said Jackson. "I said right along, we're a lot better team than we have been given credit for. Maybe, now people will take notice of us."

But left unanswered were questions concerning the future of two key members of the cast, Manager Alvin Dark and first baseman Gene Tenace.

Dark just finished his first year after replacing Dick Williams, who quit because of interference from Finley. Finley, asked before the game if he would rehire Dark for 1975, refused to say when that decision would be made. He said only it would be "when I get ready."

Tenace, the hero of the A's first championship in 1972, was benched for the last two games except for use as a late-inning defensive replacement.

He blasted Finley once again Thursday and said he wants to be traded, but was sympathetic to Dark's plight.

Someone asked Tenace if Dark resented Finley's interference from above as much as Williams did.

Southeast Thrives On East Challenge

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

It's no secret. East High seems to bring out the best in Lincoln Southeast's football team.

Southeast coach Frank Solich believes he knows why. "Maybe it's because every time we play them they're so highly rated."

"For some reason, our kids really look forward to the challenge," offers Solich. "There's more intensity. I think the ratings are a lot of it."

Friday night at Seacrest Field is no different. East has a 6-0 record and No. 2 state-wide rating. Southeast also is 6-0 for the first time in Solich's career. The Knights carry No. 3 ratings status.

The Spartans are hoping to avoid an ambush similar to what Southeast accomplished last year. East was well on its way to a rare prep "hat trick" of three straight state championships with a 7-0 record.

But Southeast shattered those notions with a 3-0 upset win on the strength of Rick Reynolds' field goal.

Although 10 players graduated from the defense achieving that shutout, Solich has rebuilt another outstanding one and he's equally proud of it.

In six games, the Knights have yielded less than 100 yards total offense per game to opponents. Southeast foes have rushed for only 59.6 yards and passed for only 37 yards a game.

With 218 offensive tries against Southeast's stingy defense, opponents have managed only 580 yards total offense. That's only 2.6 yards per try.

Although linebackers Don Pegler and Dave Hassebrook rank as the Knights' leading tacklers, Solich credits much of their success to middle guard Kelvin Roehrs.

"Kelvin has carried a lot of the burden of rebuilding our defense on his shoulders," points out Solich. "He's been getting doubled teamed most of the time."

"Last week, Grand Island was even triple-teaming him," according to Solich. "They were trying to wedge block with their center, guard and tackle."

"With so much attention being devoted to Kelvin, it's freed our linebackers somewhat to give them more activity," says Solich, adding that "Pegler and Hassebrook are two of the best we've ever had."

Solich realizes his defense faces its biggest test of the season with the East showdown. "East is so tough," he says, "because they have so many game-breakers. One week it's Bill Holmes, then Sam Yowell, then Pat Scott. Last week, it was Doug Caulkins."

The Southeast-East matchup is the only game in Lincoln Friday. It starts at 7:30 p.m. Gates open at 6:15 and fans are encouraged to arrive early to avoid traffic problems. East is the home team and its fans will sit in the West stands.

In other games Friday night, fifth-rated Lincoln Northeast (5-1) travels to ninth-rated Hastings (3-3) for a Trans-Nebraska Conference contest and Class B's second-rated Lincoln Plus X plays at Council Bluffs (1a.) St. Albert's.

Tenth-rated Lincoln High (4-2) hosts Ralston (1-5) in an Eastern 1-80 Conference game Saturday night at Seacrest Field.

Aaron Leads Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Old pro Tommy Aaron, in a deep slump since his 1973 Masters' victory, shot a seven-under-par 65 Thursday for the first-round lead in the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open GVOLF Tournament.

"I played better today than I have in a long time," Aaron said in his soft Georgia drawl.

He did not miss a green, did not make a bogey and birdied five of seven holes in one stretch.

The 37-year-old Aaron had a one-shot advantage over Frank Beard, Rik Massengale and club pro Tom Aycock, tied for second at 66, six under par on the 7,018-yard Woodlake Golf Club course.

Pre-tourney favorites Lee Trevino and defending champion Ben Crenshaw were in solid contention, Crenshaw with a 67 and Trevino at 68.

"I'm not really happy with it," the 22-year-old Crenshaw said of his five-under-par effort. "I know it's a good, solid start, but I can't say I'm pleased with it."

He drove to within 20 yards of the green three times on par-four holes and birdied only one of them. Crenshaw was tied with veteran Bob Goalby, Bob Erickson, Australian Bob Stanton and Mike Hill.

Trevino, current PGA champ, only one of the ranking superstars playing here and an overwhelming favorite for the $25,000 first prize, was in a bulky group of more than a dozen at 68 as 13 touring pros took advantage of ideal playing conditions to make a mockery of par.

"I've never really considered quitting the tour," Aaron said, "but if I had a series of years like this one, I guess I'd have to think about it."

"This has been my worst year by far."

He has won only $31,000, his worst showing in a decade, and really hasn't challenged for a title since his triumph at Augusta, Ga., 1½ years ago.

He played a near-perfect round Thursday, however.

The key was his fast start, 31 on the front nine. He punched a wedge to six feet on the third hole, made it from 15 feet on the next, birdied the sixth with a little pitch to 3½ feet, almost made a hole in one on the eighth and dropped a 25-footer on the ninth.

He went to six-under-par for the day when he reached the par-five 14th with a three-iron second shot and two-putted for birdie. Lined up a short birdie putt on the 16th and took the lead alone with a curling, 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

Kansas Divides Kicking Duties

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas Jayhawks practiced an hour and 20 minutes in sweat-soaked shorts Thursday after which Coach Don Fambrough pronounced that the Nebraska game Saturday would be their "biggest of the year."

"The Cornhuskers," Fambrough said, "are an outstanding and experienced team," despite injuries and two early-season upsets.

The coach said he would again divide kicking duties between Mike Love and Bob Swift, and that offensive tackle Dave Scott would start in spite of a bruised leg which has slowed him this week.

No. 2 Burrow Tries Harder

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

When No. 2 tries harder it usually pays off in beneficial results. At least the Jim Burrow has benefited the Nebraska football team so far this season as a punt returner.

Burrow, the No. 2 in the Nebraska uniform is probably one of the most surprising standouts on the Husker squad this year. Shades of Johnny Rodgers appear as the 6-0, 165-pound junior from Mississippi takes to the field as the deep man on punt returns.

Burrow electrified the fans against Minnesota with a 67-yard punt return for a touchdown and shut down Missouri's Tony Gillick, the nation's third-ranked punt returner, by returning punts for 69 yards on seven tries against the Tigers last Saturday.

Burrow, who is from Amory, Miss., also has a season average of 13.3 yards per return and has totaled 200 yards in 15 returns for an average of 13.3 yards per return.

Burrow is also one of the leading defensive backs on the NU squad with nine tackles and one pass interception.

"I like to run with the ball," said Burrow, "I first came here as a quarterback so I learned to like to handle the ball a long time ago."

"I never thought about being a punt returner, because I was a quarterback in high school (The same school that produced middle guard Willie Thornton) and I was a quarterback on the scout squad in 1972. But I've gotten to like it. It's fun," said the physical therapy major.

"The most important thing in punt returning is, of course, catching the ball. The nightmare for a punt returner is a fumble," Burrow said.

But what about a football player who weighs only 160-pounds facing three, sometimes more, big linemen all coming after him while he tries to concentrate on catching the ball

"Injuries are a part of football, but I don't let it bother me. Sure it's scary to see a lot of guys coming at you but you have a wall of blockers in front of you to help out."

Burrow continued, "You can't run like Johnny Rodgers if you aren't Johnny Rodgers, you just have to do what comes natural after you get the ball."

When asked about what happens next after catching the ball Burrow replied, "You see where the wall is set up and you try to stick with the ball. We predetermine the direction we will go after receiving the punt and try to go that direction. But sometimes a man gets through and you have to set for the 'wild side' of the field."

Burrow explained that surprise is the best weapon a punt return man can possess. "A break up the middle for a touchdown in a crucial situation is the best thing that can happen to a punt returner," said Burrow.

"The linemen and linebackers peel off their men and set the wall up. Then they try to get the most dangerous men taken out of the play, and we go from there. But by varying my speed and moves I can sometimes get an opening somewhere other than behind the wall. I have found out, though, that most of the times I should stay with the blockers."

Burrow doesn't catch all the punts kicked his way but there is a good reason. "You don't want to dive for the ball because you have to make sure of catching it first. You can't run with the ball unless you catch it first," he observes.

"The one I took against Minnesota was on the bounce, but it came right into my hands and I decided I should take it," said Burrow.

Burrow concludes, "Sure, they're going to get you sometimes but when you face good teams you have to expect them to get through once in a while."

"Running with the ball for a defensive back or any defensive player is always a great thrill," Burrow adds.

Travel List Includes Butterfield

Nebraska cornerback Dave Butterfield, the only questionable player for the trip to Kansas Saturday because of an injury, worked out Thursday and coach Tom Osborne decided to include him on the 55-man travel squad.

Butterfield suffered a jammed neck on the kickoff after the Huskers' only touchdown last Saturday against Missouri and had been unable to take part in drills until Thursday.

"We won't know until Saturday whether he'll be able to play," Osborne said. If he can't his place in the lineup will be taken by Jimmy Burrow.

I-back John O'Leary had the wires removed from his jaw Thursday and also will be on the bus that heads for Lawrence, Kan., Friday morning.

The travel roster:

BASKETBALL

The 1975 NCAA first-round basketball playoff at Arizona State will be held as scheduled on March 15. ASU had said a month ago that it didn't want the event because of a ruling which would have kept the Sun Devils from competing in post-season games other than the NCAA playoffs.

The Cleveland Cavaliers said they have placed veteran John Warren and rookie Mike Robinson on waivers.

Forward Willie Wise, who returned to the Utah Stars a week ago after he asked to be traded, left practice Wednesday without explanation.

Phil Robinson, 29, has been promoted from assistant to head basketball coach at C. W. Post College.

Pro-Am Cards Ruled Illegal For Amateurs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union boxing committee voted unanimously Thursday to declare professional-amateur boxing programs illegal.

Rolly Schwartz, committee chairman, said the vote was taken during the 87th annual AAU convention because the International Amateur Boxing Association has ruled that any amateur boxer appearing on a card with professional boxers will jeopardize his eligibility in the Olympic games and any other form of international competition.

The action, it was understood, stemmed from the creation of World Team Boxing which is expected to begin next January, drawing many contestants from the amateur ranks.

In other action, Ollie Downs of Cleveland became the ninth man to be enshrined in the AAU Boxing Hall of Fame. A member of the AAU for 50 years, Downs was the developer of the Cleveland Golden Gloves Association.

How About Kansas By 160 Points?

Let's have some fun today with comparative scores as we try to pick the winner of Saturday's Nebraska-Kansas Big Eight Conference football game in Lawrence, Kan.

Dr. Kenneth L. Kalkwarf of Lincoln supplies the figures and his findings are shocking, just as shocking as the result of last Saturday's Husker game against Missouri.

"It's inevitable that in trying to figure the point spread for Saturday's game that one must look at score comparisons," Dr. Kalkwarf writes. "If one looks very objectively at this year's scores, one must assume the Cornhuskers are slight favorites:

Game	Nebraska Edge
Nebraska 49, Northwestern 7	+42
Northwestern 10, Iowa 35	+17
Iowa, 21, UCLA 10	+28
UCLA 10, Stanford 17	+28
Stanford 16, Michigan 29	+17
Michigan 21, Michigan State 7	+31
Michigan State 14, Notre Dame 19	+26
Notre Dame 20, Purdue 31	+15
Purdue 23, Illinois 27	+11
Illinois 14, California 31	+6
California 17, Florida 21	-10
Florida 29, Mississippi State 13	+11
Mississippi State 21, Kansas State 16	+6
Kansas State 13, Kansas 20	+4

"With Kansas having the home field advantage, rate the game a toss-up," Dr. Kalkwarf concludes.

Now, he says, if we look at different games, from a slight Jayhawk standpoint

Game	Kansas Edge
Kansas 40, Florida State 9	+31
Florida State 7, Alabama 8	+30
Alabama 35, Mississippi 21	+44
Mississippi 10, Missouri 0	+54
Missouri 9, Arizona State 0	+63
Arizona State 30, Houston 9	+84
Houston 21, Rice 0	+105
Rice 3, Notre Dame 10	+98
Notre Dame 49, Northwestern 3	+144
Northwestern 14, Oregon 10	+148
Oregon 27, Air Force 23	+152
Air Force 27, Colorado 28	+151
Colorado 24, Wisconsin 21	+154
Wisconsin 21, Nebraska 20	+155

"With the home field rate it Kansas an even +160," the Doc says. "What else can you expect from this college football season!"

I think I'll pick a 21-21 tie.

Oklahoma State Over Missouri

My selections haven't been outstanding this season, just a 140-65 record for a .683 average. I'll admit, though, I don't take myself too seriously when trying to name the winners.

Let's see what might happen Saturday. In the Big Eight, Oklahoma over Colorado by 20, Kansas State over Iowa State by 1, and Oklahoma State over Missouri by 3.

Elsewhere around the nation:

Big Ten: Ohio State ends Indiana's one-game winning streak. Michigan State spoils Illinois' stadium anniversary celebration. Michigan runs over Wisconsin, Purdue stops Northwestern, and Minnesota finds itself in a squeaker over Iowa to keep the pig, Floyd of Rosedale.

Southeastern: Alabama over Tennessee, Florida over Florida State, Mississippi over South Carolina, Auburn over Georgia Tech, Georgia over Vanderbilt, LSU over Kentucky, Mississippi over Memphis State.

Southwest: Texas over Arkansas, SMU over Rice, Texas A & M over TCU, Texas Tech over Arizona.

Ivy: Brown over Dartmouth, Princeton over Colgate, Yale over Columbia, Harvard over Cornell, Penn over Lafayette.

Atlantic Coast: Duke over Clemson, Maryland over Wake Forest, North Carolina State over North Carolina, William & Mary over Rutgers, Virginia over WPI.

Pacific-8: California over Oregon State, Southern California over Oregon, Stanford over Washington, UCLA over Washington State.

Elsewhere: Air Force over Navy, Notre Dame over Army, Pittsburgh over Boston College, Temple over Holy Cross, Houston over Villanova, Miami (Fla.) over West Virginia, Penn State over Syracuse, Boston U. over Bucknell, Tulsa over West Texas State, Furman over East Tennessee State, Colorado State over Nevada-Reno, Southern Mississippi over VMI, Miami (Ohio) over Bowling Green, Tampa over Southwest Louisiana, Western Michigan over Marshall, East Carolina over Appalachian State, Lenoir Rhyne over Davidson, Louisville over Drake, Cincinnati over Wichita State.

And Shippory Rock to roll again, this time over Waynesburg. The Rockets are now 4-1.

Testimony By Rozelle

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Commissioner Pete Rozelle testified in federal court Thursday that a new National Football League franchise was worth $50,000 in 1966, and not $6.7 million as claimed at the U.S. government.

Rozelle said intense competition for players from the rival American Football League made a new NFL franchise a "high risk investment."

His testimony came on the fourth day of a trial of a suit involving the Atlanta Falcons who paid $8.5 million to join the NFL in 1966.

The Falcons paid the fee over five years and estimated the actual cost of the team at $7.7 million with $800,000 assigned to interest payments.

Of the $7.7 million, they said

$50,000 represented the cost of entering the league and the remainder was the price for 42 football players chosen from the rosters of the 14 existing NFL teams.

The Falcons then claimed a $1.47 million deduction in each of their first two years of operation as a depreciation allowance for the wear and tear on their players.

The Internal Revenue Service, however, contended that only $1,050,000 of the original purchase price represented the value of the players and that the rest of the fee represented the charge for joining the NFL.

A minority stockholder filed suit against the IRS challenging the IRS assessment.

If the IRS wins the case, it could lower the value of professional sports teams by closing a lucrative and frequently used tax shelter. Federal officials said it was the first time this tax shelter had been attacked by the IRS.

A key question in the suit has been what is the value of the franchise itself as compared to the value of the 42 players which the Falcons were allowed to choose from the 14 existing NFL teams.

Most of the first three days of the trial were taken up with Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, giving his opinion of the worth of the 42 original Falcon's players. He concluded that the players were worth well over $7 million.

In his testimony, Rozelle offered some inside views on decision-making in the NFL.

Selmer Makes Kicking Good

Coral Gables, Fla. — Brian Selmer, sophomore from Lincoln, Neb., made good on his first kicking opportunities of the year for the University of Miami.
 He kicked the only extra point he tried as Miami downed University of Pacific, 35-6, last week and then followed by kicking off into the end zone.
 Miami, 3-1 on the season, plays University of West Virginia in Morgantown this week.

Lull In Hunting Reported By Game Commission

Duck hunting is virtually at a standstill across most of Nebraska, with the early flights already past Nebraska, and the late-migrating birds not yet here.

Geese seem to be rather scarce, also. Snow goose hunting is usually in full swing along the Missouri River about this time, but hunting has been slow there recently.

With the lull in hunting, many sportsmen have been taking up their fishing tackle again, and with good results in many cases.

According to reports of Game and Parks Commission conservation officers in the field, outdoor activity across the state includes:

PANHANDLE
 Duck hunting has been fair in the Lake McConaughy and Lake Ogalala regions. Waterfowlers have also done well on green-winged teal and a few snow geese at Box Butte Reservoir. Along most of the North Platte Valley, few ducks or duck hunters are apparent.

Fishermen at Box Butte Reservoir are taking a few northern pike to 2 pounds, along with a few walleye, both on minnows. Occasional rainbow trout are hitting trout eggs and worms in Scotts Bluff County streams. West Kimball Reservoir is giving up a few 1 1/2 pound walleye on minnows.

SAND HILLS
 Farm ponds in southern Holt County offer fair success on teal and gadwall. The Niobrara River in Boyd County is holding some ducks, but none are on the Missouri River in that area. Sherman Reservoir at Loup City is holding some 2,000 ducks.

SOUTHWEST
 Hunters in Buffalo and Kearney counties had fair success early in the week, mostly on teal. Hunting pressure has been light the past few days.

Fishermen at Medicine Creek Reservoir have been scoring well on 2-pound catfish, hitting crawdad tails.

NORTHEAST
 A few blue-winged teal, gadwall, wigeon, and an occasional mallard have been taken along the Missouri River in western Knox County. But duck hunting could be better. In the Tekamah area, no ducks are around, and the 20,000 geese in the vicinity are staying close to refuges.

Fishermen have been taking a few walleye to 3 pounds in the Niobrara River near Niobrara. Minnows have been the best bait.

SOUTHEAST
 Archery deer hunters have been out in good numbers, and have been doing well. Loss of some foliage has helped their cause, and should prove a big help to squirrel hunters.

Duck hunting in the area is poor, with few ducks and almost no marshes of small ponds offering much water. Some waterfowl hunters have scored on Salt Valley lakes, however.

Skinner, Omaha Marian Gain Girls' Golf Honors

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Omaha — North Platte High School freshman Val Skinner received a belated birthday present at Omaha Benson Park Golf Course here Thursday as she added the Nebraska State High School Girl's Golf Tournament title to the Girl's State Junior Championship she won this past summer.

Omaha Marian stormed away with the team title via the consistency of team members Theresa Wanek (82), Sharon Slattery (84), Ann Carter (98) and Marion Slattery (101).

But the big story was the freckle-faced Skinner who just celebrated her 14th birthday Wednesday, firing a two over par 80 to outdistance second place Wanek at 82.

Valerie sunk a 25-foot downhill putt on the 18th green for par to gain medalist honors. "I was shaking," Skinner said of her final putt. "I didn't think I was going to make it and I knew I needed it."

After a long approach shot to the 18th green, Valerie left her chip 25-feet short of the cup. She calmly stepped up to the ball and ran it in.

But her real boost came on the 520-yard par 6, 15th hole. After hitting her third shot within 15-feet of the hole, she snaked that putt in for an eagle-four to go from four over par back to two over.

She finished the back side with an even par 39 and coupled with a front nine 41, totaled 80.

The amazing part of Skinner's victory wasn't that she's only a freshman, but that she hasn't played a full round of golf for two weeks because of a badly sprained hand suffered in a fall. For the past week she's been soaking her left hand, keeping it in ice and wearing a brace.

She admitted to only playing seven holes before the tournament but said he still hit plenty of range balls.

"It (the pain) killed me," she said. "But I let it pass. I knew I had to practice. The swelling didn't even go down until last night."

The pain was still bothersome as she teed it up to start the tournament Thursday, as was evident by her bogey six on the opening hole, a 390-yard par five. She put her second shot into the trap guarding the front of the green and took four to get down.

Lincoln's highest finisher was Jane Deeter of Southeast. Deeter, having trouble with the mammoth greens, carded an 89 for the sixth-place medal.

"The greens were kind of funny," Deeter said. "Some were watered heavily and putted real slow during the morning. But after it dried out a little bit they were really fast. I four putted one green on the front nine and I could've cried."

Skinner agreed with Deeter's observation of the green conditions. "The greens really varied," she said. "They were fast, slow, wet and dry. You never knew how the next one would putt."

East High's Kathy Hughett with a 45-50-90 tied for 10th place with Jane Hillman of York but bowed to Hillman on the first extra hole of the playoff.

Grand Island placed three golfers in the top ten enroute to the overall runner-up position. Fifth place Mary Desch (88), seventh place Kay (90) and ninth place Mimi Huston (93) led the Islanders to a 388 total and the silver medal.

Played under ideal weather conditions, Benson course manager Bob McKinnon couldn't have been happier with the results of the inaugural event. "It's been a delightful tournament," he noted. "And we'd welcome the girls again tomorrow if they had to be here. They were just great."

Record Entact

Chicago (AP) — Undeclared Omaha lightweight Dale Hernandez knocked out Cincinnati's Johnny North in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round fight.

The victory was the 18th straight for Hernandez.

The knockout punch came suddenly as Hernandez moved to his left and shot out a right that dropped the aggressive North.

Lincolnite Tops Class A Stats

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

The big play. That's what Omaha Burke's Tim Wurth, Lincoln Southeast's Tim Hager and North Platte's Dave Weiss used last weekend to emerge state-wide Class A football statistical leaders.

Wurth, a 5-8, 160-pound running back, used a 22-carry, 236-yard performance against Omaha South to overtake Scottsbluff's Jim Ruzicka for the state rushing lead.

The effort gives Wurth 931 yards in six games for a 155.2-yard average. Scottsbluff's Ruzicka, a fullback credited with the most carries among the leaders, has accumulated 813 yards for a 135.5 per game average.

Southeast's Hager used a 12-18, 155-yard, 2-touchdown performance against Grand Island to supplant Omaha Ryan's Bruce Perdue for the state passing leadership.

Hager has a 141.5-yard per game passing average. Perdue, Omaha Roncalli's Kevin Quinn and Norfolk's Dave Copple are the only other throwers in the Class A ranks owning a better than 100-yard passing average.

North Platte's Weiss, a speedy split end, snagged only two passes last week against Alliance. But they accounted for 130 yards and a pair of touchdowns to boost him from seventh to first in pass receiving.

Bellevue's Bill Santoro broke last week's 4-way deadlock for the state Class A scoring lead with a touchdown against Sioux Falls (S.D.). He now has 48 points in six games.

Links 1957 Victor

The Links were the last Capital City team to win the state tennis championship in 1957. Omaha teams have won or shared every title since then except for Hastings in 1966 and North Platte in 1970, according to Sunday Journal and Star compilations.

Lincoln High's Rugg, the Trans-Nebbraska Conference champion, defeated Bellevue's Paul Green, 6-0, 6-0 in the first round and topped Creighton Prep's Bob Iwersen, 6-0, 6-4, in the quarterfinals.

Southeast's Johnson, the No. 2 seed and Eastern I-80 Conference champion, opened with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Omaha Northwest's Craig Bufford. He then sidelined Lincoln Northeast's Kent Fehr, 6-0, 6-0, in the quarterfinals.

East's Allman also lived up to pre-tourney expectations. He easily handled Omaha North's Ben Hill, 6-0, 6-0, in the opening round before dispatching Omaha Central's Jeff Miller, 6-1, 6-4, in the quarterfinals.

The other finalist in the singles competition is Omaha Burke's Jim Conant. He outlasted Grand Island's Kevin McDermott, 6-3, 7-5, in the first round and followed with an equally tough 6-2, 7-5 decision over Fremont's Kerry Sutton in the quarterfinals.

Lincoln is assured of being represented in the singles finals since Rugg and Allman meet in one semifinal. Johnson and Conant square off in the other.

The semifinal matches are set for 9 a.m. The finals are scheduled for 1 p.m.

Southeast's Jim Perry and Mark Kramer, the No. 3-seeded team, carry Capital City hopes in the doubles competition.

Their quarterfinal match against Lincoln High's Gerd

Anderson and Max Brandt was a first day highlight. The Knight duo outlasted the Link standouts, 5-7, 7-5, 6-3.

Perry and Kramer will meet Fremont's Craig Johnson and Jeff Wraga in Friday's semifinals.

NU-UNO Game Seating Ready

Omaha — There will be seating for 8,500 fans at UN-UNO's stadium when the Nebraska freshman football team faces the UNO Jayvees at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, according to Don Leahy, athletic director.

Leahy is anticipating a turnover of about 6,000 for the contest. All ticket money will go to the Al Caniglia Memorial Scholarship fund. General admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students. There also will be 1,000 reserved seats sold at $4 each.

The NU freshman have played just one game, having beaten Kansas State's Jayvees, while UNO is 2-0 with victories over Jayvee squads from South Dakota and South Dakota State.

East Captures Volleyball Title

Lincoln East remained undefeated in city competition and raised its season record to 8-3 by capturing the Lincoln Public Schools girl's volleyball championships at the East High gym Thursday night.

Behind the scoring leadership of game captain Kris Hermanson, the Spartans disposed of Southeast in first round play, 15-3, 15-9 and Lincoln High in the finals 15-5, 15-10.

First Round

Hooper Man Dies In Crash

Hooper (UPI) — Jimmy A. Liston, 26, Hooper, was killed Thursday in a two-car collision about four miles southwest of here on a Dodge County road, the State Patrol reported.

The patrol said Liston was the driver of a car which was struck broadside at an intersection by a car driven by William L. Roemer, 73, Scribner.

McCook Man Medical Chief Of Blue Cross

McCook (UPI) — Dr. Roger Mason of McCook has been appointed medical director for Nebraska Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Noting that in the past the position had been handled on a part-time basis, Mason said Thursday the growth of the organization now required a full-time director.

Alternative methods of financing health care are being considered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Mason said, particularly if a national health insurance plan goes into effect.

Mason is a member of the organization's board of directors, but said he would resign when he assumes the post of medical director Jan. 1.

Mason is a native of Omaha and has been practicing medicine in McCook for 14 years.

United Fund Donations Surprise Director

United Fund donations continue to flow into the Lincoln Community Service office, indicating some pleasantly surprising developments.

Lynn Roper, campaign director, told the LCS board Thursday retired persons on fixed incomes have made a good response to neighborhood requests for donations.

That is one area "we thought, with inflation, would be devastating to us," Ms. Roper said.

She reported that 46.6% of the $1,430,206 goal has been reached, with pledges totalling $665,993.

Thanksgiving Target Date
Thanksgiving is the target date for the end of the campaign. Asked whether the goal would be met, she said it is "too early to tell" but predicted that developments during the coming weeks will provide a good indicator.

Doug Higgins, LCS planning director, told board members Planning Division committee members will visit Open Door Health Center, operated under the auspices of Family Services Association, next week in preparation for conducting a full evaluation of the center's services. The evaluation is to be completed Nov. 1.

He told the board he believes the evaluation will be favorable.

Homemakers Studied
An evaluation of the Madonna Homemakers, which provides in-home services for the chronically ill, aged and disabled, also is forthcoming. Based on that data, the LCS board is to determine whether to maintain its initial funding of the agency.

The Catholic Social Service Bureau is making changes required by LCS, Higgins said.

The suggested alterations in its structure included better accessibility, reporting, budgeting and evaluation. The bureau's continued funding by LCS after Dec. 31, 1975, hinges on success with implementing those changes.

Goodwill 'Beefed Up'
In other areas, Goodwill is "beefing up" the evaluation, rehabilitation and training program, Higgins said, predicting a "viable rehabilitation program there in six months to a year." The Planning Division has assisted Goodwill in bringing about those changes.

Students Honored At Southeast

Everyone should be interested in "one of the prime problems facing America today — increasing crime," Police Chief Joe Carroll told the audience at the Lincoln Southeast High School honors convocation

Citing a 16% increase in the first half of 1974 as compared to 1973, Carroll said "it is individuals of your caliber that we want to get involved" in judicial occupations. He said this could include judges, attorneys or law enforcement personnel.

He stressed that it is more important now than ever to receive higher education. Because "I believe in high academic grades," he reminded students that he has donated a $1,000 gift to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln criminal justice program.

Those honored for their 1973-74 spring semester grades were:

More Ms. At Curtis Ag School

Curtis — The University of Nebraska School of Technical Agriculture at Curtis has opened its doors for a 10th year with an enrollment of 255 students.

Feminine numbers are increasing with 78 women registered this fall, compared to 177 men in the all-agriculture curriculum.

The 21-month vocational school was established by the Legislature to train rural and city youth for farm and off-farm agriculturally oriented occupations. The school began operations in the fall of 1965 with 31 students in two departments. Since then the technical school has graduated 630 students.

According to school records, 98% of the students employed find jobs in the field in which they were trained. "In fact," noted school superintendent Bill Siminoe, "our graduates are able to choose from four to five jobs upon graduation."

Programs include agricultural business technology with 23 students, agricultural land and water technology with 13 students; agricultural machinery mechanics technology, 41 students; commercial horticulture technology, 33 students; production agriculture technology, 77 students, and veterinary technology, 68 students.

The growing campus, which houses the only totally agriculture technical school to date in the country, is planning several major additions, said Siminoe.

First, the agricultural machinery mechanics building will be enlarged to comply with OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Act) requirements at a price tag of $67,500.

The commercial horticulture department will be getting a new greenhouse and headhouse which will be seven times larger than the present facility, a made-over poultry building. The cost will be $65,000.

The school will also begin taking bids on a new laboratory and classroom for the veterinary technology and production ag departments. "We're turning more away in these two departments than we are able to serve so we really need this expansion," Siminoe said.

But increased enrollment will create a housing shortage so the superintendent speculated that they should work on a new cafeteria and student union, which would create extra space in the present dorm facility.

UNL Business Dean Stresses Nebraska Opportunities

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

A pair of three-legged milking stools form the model for a new partnership in the '70s between the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, business college and meeting that the UNL College of Business Administration intends not only to serve students, but the entire state.

The three legs on each stool represent concern, care and cooperation, Smith said. But one seat is reserved for future leaders, while the other one will serve present leaders in business and industry.

This state, in business and industry.

Increase In Women

Since Smith took over in August 1973 as the business college's fifth dean, he said there has been a 27.4% increase in women studying business, from 284 to 362, and a 3.9% overall increase in business majors, from 2,188 to 2,253.

Lincoln and Omaha with the business college program.

Yet the college is losing 50% of its graduates to jobs outside Nebraska, and Smith said UNL and businesses must convince students that "tremendous opportunities" exist in their home towns. Otherwise, the state will lose the "best potential leadership in your community 20 years down the line."

to help, "in any way we can, the current business leaders of this state," he said. For example, the Executive M.B.A. (master of business administration degree) program began this fall for mid-career executives with at least 10 years experience to get "regenerated" in new technology and advancements.

Dean Smith, who holds a Ph.D. in communication and organizational psychology from Purdue University, also earned degrees in mechanical engineering and industrial relations.

Opportunities Here

The stool for future business leaders — today's students — would topple without concern, "making sure we tell the young people of this state the business opportunities" that exist and how to "exert leadership," Smith said.

Students are realizing now that "business leaders make a difference in the quality of life," a shift from the 1960s, Smith said, when students walking into the business college used to hide their faces in their coats, away from their anti-business, social-minded contemporaries.

Another leg on the stool, representing care, has come with the college's new academic counseling program, combining career planning and academic planning, Smith said.

And the cooperation leg has resulted in a new college intern program. For example, he said, two sophomores were placed in a Lincoln bank, and by the time they graduate, they will have gotten a "planned educational experience in every department in the bank."

More Interns

Expanding the intern program "to serve the whole state" and putting UNL student interns in their home-town businesses will check that out-migration he said.

Meanwhile, "We can no longer think of education as something that stops once a student walks across a stage and gets a degree," he said.

The business college will work

Irrigation Said Worth $1 Billion To Nebraska

Irrigation meant more than a billion dollars to Nebraska this year, according to Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora.

Kremer was one of four state senators who formed a panel at the annual meeting Thursday of the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry.

Kremer said the difference in yield between dryland and irrigated corn was about 75 bushels. Assuming that all the five million acres of irrigated land in the state were planted with corn, Kremer said, irrigation meant $75 million more bushels of corn.

Assuming that the corn sold for $3 per bushel, Kremer said, its value is $1.125 billion.

"We in Nebraska have yet to comprehend what we have in this state," Kremer said. However, Kremer admitted that some measures will have to be taken to insure that ground water supplies are not depleted.

Noting that he mentions the phrase with caution, Kremer said that he feels "trans-basin diversion" of water "will have to come" to insure that ground water supplies in some areas of the state are not depleted to the point where irrigation is impossible.

"Trans-basin diversion" involves transportation of water supplies among river basins to recharge ground water supplies. Kremer said he also feels that the state will have to build more water storage facilities such as Lake McConaughy.

Another member of the panel, Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, said that the Legislature will be looking at the fees collected by retailers who collect taxes.

Retailers who collect gasoline, cigarette and sales taxes are paid a fee for collecting the taxes. There has been some criticism recently that the retailers are being paid too much for this service.

A third member of the panel, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, said that if state aid to education is rejected by the voters, the courts will probably be asked to mandate that method of funding. Courts have done just that in other states.

A law providing for state aid to education, LB772, has been placed on the ballot, although a legal effort to keep it off the ballot is pending before the Supreme Court.

Also appearing on the panel was Sen. Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Thursday it has extended draft resisters so they could furloughs given 83 imprisoned appeal their cases to the recently established clemency board. They originally were furloughed Sept. 17 for 30 days to permit them to file appeals. However, the board has not established filing procedures and for that reason they were given an additional 30 days furlough time in which to apply for clemency, a spokesman for the Bureau of Prisons said. There is a four-step process of applying for clemency. The board may recommend clemency to the President or recommend alternate service.

"THE LONGEST YARD" is a movie that cracks a lot of jokes. And a lot of bones. Burt Reynolds stars — tough, sassy — and always that fire.

Reynolds is at his most virile. The wrath of a woman scorned starts his trouble. However, he's got some wrath of his own. And the last 45 minutes of the film is unlike anything you have ever seen. It will have you howling and cheering like no movie ever has.

"THE LONGEST YARD" is about life. And it's about fighting back. It's about good over evil. And about laughing uproariously at them both.

"THE LONGEST YARD" is a fierce, funny movie. For men, for women, for everyone.

Impact of Money Supply On Interest Rates Viewed

By PETER S. NAGAN

Washington — If you want to know where interest rates are likely to go in the months ahead, watch what happens to the nation's money supply.

The credit-controlling Federal Reserve System is trying to hold the money supply's growth within a 5-to-6% a-year range to keep the economy steady while slowing inflation. When the rate goes above or below this range, the Fed acts to hold it down or stimulate it.

The money supply is defined as checking-account deposits at commercial banks, plus currency in circulation. There are other definitions, which include savings accounts, etc., but the narrow concept is the one most followed.

Further Declines
If the money supply continues to show little growth, like the 1.9%-a-year rate of the third quarter, you can count on further declines in short-term interest rates.

Monetary economists are not so sure that you will see comparable declines in bond yields and mortgage rates, though.

Analysts aren't saying that the next few months will, in fact, bring another poor showing in the growth of the money supply. Quite the contrary, most are looking for a decided pick-up in the rate of growth, back to the 5-to-6% range that is considered to be the long-run target of Federal Reserve policy.

One reason: the high rate of inflation that is likely to continue will mean an increase in the dollar value of goods and services produced — even if the physical volume goes down; and the more transactions, the more money that is needed and used. For another thing, the fact that money growth has been lagging so much makes a rebound seem all the more likely.

"Strange Animal"
But there is always the possibility that the expected rebound won't materialize. The money supply is a strange animal. It's growth generally tracks with that of business activity over longer periods — say, three or, better still, six months or a year. But it can also go off the path for several months, as it did in the third quarter.

Federal Reserve analysts can't fully explain the money supply's recent behavior. In part, it may be a lagged effect of the high interest rates of last June and July, which led many people to convert their ready cash into rich-yielding bonds and other securities. Beyond this, perhaps the summer lag was an aberration.

The credit controllers at the "Fed" concede another possibility, though. Maybe the low money growth is telling us something negative about the economy. Maybe the current recession is really worse than the officials think — and getting even worse.

But they just don't know. Last year, money growth was also flat in the third quarter, and then rebounded in the fourth. Officials are hoping for a repeat of the pattern — at least to the extent of a return to the desired range of five to six per cent.

Experts Skeptical
Monetary experts on Wall Street, who make their own independent projections of money growth, are skeptical. Some see the supply expanding at an annual rate of only three per cent this quarter.

If they are right, the Federal Reserve's course will be clear: it will move to increase the bank's lending power, a process which makes for more rapid monetary expansion and lower interest rates. Some analysts think that, under such circumstances, the commercial banks' key lending rate — the prime rate — could get down to 9% or less by the end of the year.

The prime — the rate banks charge their biggest and least risky customers and from which some of their other rates are scaled — has come down recently from its peak of 12% to 11½%.

If the money supply does bounce back to the 5-to-6%-a-year rate of growth in, say, the next month or so, the decline in interest rates may still continue — but at a measurably slower pace.

Flavorland Sale Appears Closer

Omaha (AP) — Foxley & Co., and Omaha-based feedlot operator, apparently moved closer Wednesday to taking controlling interest in Flavorland Industries, Inc. of Sioux City, Iowa.

Flavorland is a meat packing firm. Flavorland has announced that company head James R. McDonald, his wife, and Robert R. Dolsen, executive vice president, have agreed to sell their stock interest in the firm to Foxley for $7.50 per share.

All told, Dolsen and the McDonalds hold preferred stock that is convertible to 253,600 shares.

Flavorland also said Foxley has agreed to buy all shares offered by stockholders at $7.50. The entire transaction, if completed, would be a $5.8 million investment for Foxley, with the money coming from working capital and bank borrowings.

The Flavorland Board of Directors is not resisting the Foxley takeover try, and has made no recommendations on the tender offer to stockholders.

William Foxley has said he wants controlling interest in Flavorland to protect his investment in the firm. Earlier this year, he received 125,000 shares of Flavorland stock as part of a $6 million price Flavorland paid for a Foxley feedlot near Mead, Neb.

Low Price-High Cost Squeeze On Cattle Industry To Continue

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An economist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture said Thursday there is little chance that the low price-high cost squeeze on the cattle industry can be turned around until sometime in 1976.

In the meantime, said George Hoffman, the housewife will reap the benefit of comparatively low beef prices at the supermarket for at least another year.

There is one exception. The supply of prime and choice cuts, marbled with fat and tender enough to cut with a fork, will diminish and as the result they will remain comparatively expensive.

Hoffman spoke at the initial meeting of a cattle industry advisory committee set up by the Department of Agriculture.

It is made up of cattle breeders, cattle feeders and meat wholesalers from all over the country, plus a couple of livestock research specialists, a banker and a representative of the Consumers Union.

Hoffman is with the economic research service of the Department of Agriculture, and he told the committee that the cattle industry built up such a head of steam in recent years of herd expansion that it cannot now quickly turn off a production line which is flooding the market with animals.

"The essential problem for the industry is now the cost of production," Hoffman said. This is the reason there will be

Prior to making a tender offer for 300,000 to 400,000 shares of Flavorland stock last week, Foxley had purchased another 102,700 shares.

Foxley continues to manage the Mead feedlot, and owns lots at both Manley and Ordway, Neb.

Flavorland, which has plants in Omaha and Sioux City, estimated operating losses during the quarter ending Sept. 28 at between $400,000 and $450,000. During the same reporting period last year the firm reported net profits of $593,000.

Flavorland officials attribute the loss during the last quarter to adverse market conditions for cattle and finished meat products.

It takes intensive feeding of grains to produce the choice and prime cuts, and grains are expensive.

Feeders can't afford them, so cattle are going to market without the finish which has become so prized on the dinner table.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Emergency Operation to help countries hardest hit by high prices of oil, food, fertilizer and manufactured goods is still $1 billion shy of its target.

The aim of the operation is to enable the countries to maintain their essential imports for the 12 months through next April.

The head of the operation, Argentine economist Raul Prebisch, estimates it will require $2.3 billion in aid from industrial and oil-producing countries to accomplish this.

Blue Chips And Glammers Pace Climb

New York (AP) — The stock market turned back some early profit taking, as blue chips and glammers led the list to a moderate gain Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials advanced 9.15 to 651.44 and gainers topped losers, 765 to 590 of the 1,755 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. In the opening hour, the Dow had been down more than 2 points, and declines were more than 2 to 1 ahead of advances.

A number of analysts, including Ronald Cooper of Thomson & McKinnon Auchincloss Kohlmeier, Inc., took heart from the day's performance, saying that the afternoon recovery after the last two day's sharp losses tended to confirm the genuineness of last week's sparkling rally.

"We've been hearing from traders we haven't heard from in months," Cooper said.

The Big Board's composite index of all listed common stocks rose 0.40 to 37.52.

Volume was a moderate 14.47 million shares, down slightly from Wednesday's 14.79 million.

The day produced a mixed bag of economic news. On the plus side were more signs the Federal Reserve was allowing interest rates to decline further, coupled with news the nation's money supply had dropped $400 million in the latest reporting week.

But the Commerce Department reported the real gross national product had declined for the third straight quarter, accompanied by an 11.5 per cent inflation rate. Neither development appeared to ruffle Wall Street's spirits, however.

AMP, Inc., the most-active NYSE issue, fell 3/4 to 21. Leading the advance by bluechip issues was Eastman Kodak, which rose 4 1/2 to 69 1/2, in lively trading. The stock had been heavily sold earlier in the week on news of lower third-quarter earnings but rebounded in bargain hunting Thursday.

Other strong blue chips included U.S. Steel, up 1 1/2 at 41 1/4; and Exxon, a point to 67 1/2.

Particularly big gains among glamor issues were scored by oil-field service stocks. Halliburton gained 5 1/2, McDermott 5 1/2, Schlumberger 4, and Hughes Tool 3 1/2.

Atlantic Richfield climbed 2 1/2 to 87. The company announced it planned to spend $1.5 billion for capital outlays and exploration over the next five years.

Singer dropped 2 1/2 to 14 1/2. On Wednesday the company had reported a loss of $31.5 million in the third quarter.

Xerox, a loser earlier this week because of disappointing earnings, rebounded 1 1/2, to 66.

On the American Stock Exchange, Houston Oil & Minerals led the actives, up 3/4 to 24 1/2.

The Amex market-value index gained .05 to 68.98.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index rose .85 to 62.04.

Jobs Plan Termed Inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO and the National Association of Counties on Thursday described President Ford's proposed public jobs program as inadequate to deal with rising unemployment.

But the essence of the Ford program, to provide jobs only for those hardest hit by unemployment, was endorsed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Various proposals for helping persons suffering from unemployment were the subject of a hearing before a Senate Labor subcommittee headed by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson's own bill would start providing public-service jobs whenever the national rate of unemployment hits 4.5 per cent.

It was backed by Milwaukee County Executive John L. Doyle, on behalf of the National Association of Counties, and Nathaniel Goldfinger, chief economist for the AFL-CIO.

Ford's proposal would be triggered only when an area has more than 6.5 per cent unemployment for three straight months and when nationwide unemployment has averaged 6 per cent for the same period.

Food.

It should be your first investment.

What good are paper assets, including dollar bills if there's no food on the table? Investment programs won't go very far in a food crisis. Now is the time to start stocking up with some storable food supplies. Not when the food runs short or when it's so inflated you can't feed yourself or your family.

We offer the best quality storage food line available. Our foods are the closest thing to fresh products. They're delicious, not contrived substitutes for the real thing, last just a water. There are no preservatives yet they store indefinitely. They're a convenient, wise, nutritious investment — one everyone should look into.

is anyone "tripping the light fantastic" in your office?

Liberty's Food Division can put together an ideal food storage program for you.

Replace dangerous extension cords. Let Flexiduct handsomely—and safely—bring additional outlets to any area. It affixes easily to most floor surfaces: carpeting, tile, linoleum, concrete. It's durable, highly resistant to abrasion and withstands heavy foot and wheel traffic. 6 standard lengths. 6 designer colors.

Flexiduct is ideal for plant and home power problems, too.

Study Advises U.S. To Halve Energy Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4 million Ford Foundation study said Thursday the nation should cut the growth of energy demand in half and could, if necessary, achieve zero growth after 1985.

Such cuts can be made through improved efficiency without sacrificing economic growth, said the final report of the foundation's Energy Policy Project.

Short-range issues such as President Ford's policy to reduce oil consumption one million barrels a day by voluntary conservation were not considered in this study.

But project director S. David Freeman told reporters he considered the present administration policy "grossly inadequate."

Net income totaled $41.5 million, or 87 cents a share, compared with $26.9 million, or 56 cents a share a year ago. Worldwide sales came to $463.4 million, a gain of 28% from $363.2 million the same period last year.

Jobs Plan Termed Inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO and the National Association of Counties on Thursday described President Ford's proposed public jobs program as inadequate to deal with rising unemployment.

But the essence of the Ford program, to provide jobs only for those hardest hit by unemployment, was endorsed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Various proposals for helping persons suffering from unemployment were the subject of a hearing before a Senate Labor subcommittee headed by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson's own bill would start providing public-service jobs whenever the national rate of unemployment hits 4.5 per cent.

It was backed by Milwaukee County Executive John L. Doyle, on behalf of the National Association of Counties, and Nathaniel Goldfinger, chief economist for the AFL-CIO.

Ford's proposal would be triggered

State Colleges Will Seek $1.8 Million For Building

Kearney (UPI) — The State College Board of Trustees Thursday approved for submission to the 1975 Legislature approximately $1.8 million in priority building projects.

The state college system and the University of Nebraska were earlier directed to develop systemwide capital construction priorities.

Before approving the list Thursday, board members criticized maintenance and housekeeping at the four campuses and asked for a detailed study which would not require additional money or manpower.

The top projects totaled about $300,000 for systemwide maintenance and repair, including Chadron and Wayne State Colleges, $75,000; Kearney State, $100,000; and Peru State, $50,000.

Second priority went for starting a $600,000 deferred maintenance program over a three-year period. Getting third priority was $230,000 for Phase II of the health and Physical education building at Peru.

Other projects in order of priority were:

Construction planning, $20,000; final phase of the administration, building construction at Chadron, $350,000; new track at Wayne, $60,000; new tennis courts at Kearney, $60,000; landscaping at Kearney, $5,000; Chadron natural history preserve, $40,000; and razing of an old physical industrial building at Wayne, $75,000.

After approving some changes in space utilization, the trustees authorized preliminary work to continue on a $1.8 million classroom-office structure at Kearney. The timetable for letting bids and construction will be set later.

Each of the college presidents was told to report next month on the status of maintenance at his college.

According to trustee George Eggermayer, the system has some good housekeeping and some which is very poor.

In other action, the board:

- Approved the hiring of the Omaha law firm of Swarr, May, Smith and Anderson as its legal counsel, replacing William Harding of Lincoln.
- Heard a report on faculty salary negotiations.
- Directed Dr. Edwin Nelson, trustee executive officer, and the presidents to find out how money is being spent on campuses for travel.

VETERAN FIREMAN . . . Sharon still tends pump trucks.

Shalon First Volunteered To Fight Abie Fires In 1931

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Abie — The volunteer fire department is traditionally a big influence on a little town's social life as well as its soundness of sleep. And soft-spoken Emil Shalon has been an important cog in the Abie volunteer crew for more than 40 years.

Now retired, Shalon admits to spending most of his time just "fooling around." But the veteran fireman still attends fire department meetings as faithfully as ever, tends the fire equipment, and turns the pump-truck engines over once a week to make sure they're in running order.

A little of the philosophy of volunteer firefighters emerges as Shalon sits on the front bumper of the department's 1951 Chevy pumper and reflects. "You can't satisfy everyone, but you try to be of help."

Joined In 1931

Shalon has been of help since 1931, a few years after he moved into Abie from his family's farm just three miles north of town and went to work driving a truck. Later he made a living at the grain elevator and spent his last 15 working years maintaining township roads.

Now he keeps his wife Stazie company and helps the county out when it needs a truck driver. Installation of the town's water supply in 1932 and the department's steady upgrading of its equipment have made firefighting easier, Shalon says.

The department started out with a two-wheel chemical cart, in which pumping pressure was created by mixing soda and acid. The crew now has two pumpers and is considering building a new fire station. The rural district, which cooperates closely with the Abie crew, has a tanker truck of its own.

With the improvements in equipment and water supply has come increased security for Abie folks. There have been no catastrophic fires in town since a couple big store buildings burned, before city water was installed. Since then, Shalon says, the biggest worries have been occasional prairie fires and a series of nocturnal barn fires a few years back, apparently the work of a firebug.

Social Role Eroded

Changing times have eroded the fire department's role as the village's main mover and shaker of social events and entertainment.

"At one time, in the Forties, we used to rent this hall (across the street from the fire station) and run dances every two weeks, and they used to make good," Shalon says. Big-name dance bands from Omaha brought big crowds from all over the countryside.

"Once a year, we used to have a carnival celebration during the fall," he adds. Known as the Firemen's Picnic, it also drew a lot of people and raised a lot of money for the department.

Both traditions fell victim to declining attendance, Shalon says. But the department still throws a yearly dance which remains highly popular, as evidenced by the turnout for a recent bash featuring the Ernie Kucera Orchestra.

A former chairman and vice chairman of the fire department, Shalon served as treasurer for a quarter-century before turning the financial duties over to a younger man a couple years ago. Shalon went inactive upon reaching retirement age earlier this year.

Lots Of Volunteers

"I don't go to the fires like I used to," he says. "Some of these younger guys have to learn that, too." The department has little trouble recruiting new volunteers from among young farmers, he says, and keeps its membership around 35 despite the town's small size.

Although farm volunteers are dispersed, he says, the crew responds amazingly well when there's a fire.

With an experienced guy like Emil Shalon in town, standing ready to back up the "younger guys," Abie residents have little to fear. Shalon, however, doubts if he'll be needed much.

"I have confidence that they'll be able to do it," he says.

Decision Postponed By OPPD Directors

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District board of directors Thursday approved a time extension on the nuclear steam supply system contract for a second nuclear unit at the Fort Calhoun Station.

The board also approved the purchase of additional land for the Nebraska City Power Station site and awarded four contracts.

The time extension was approved on a contract held by the Westinghouse Electric Corp. The original contract contained a requirement that the board select one of several options by Oct. 18. Thursday's action extends that time to Jan. 17.

At that time the district will select one of two different sized units, 1,150,000 or 900,000 kilowatts, delay the start-up of the plant for one year, or cancel the contract.

OPPD General Manager Ralph W. Shaw said the district needed additional time for study on the contract "because of the size of the plant, its complexity, and the current financial picture."

The board approved the purchase of about 67 acres of additional land for the Nebraska City Power Station site. The land is being purchased at a cost of $97-150. OPPD's 575-kilowatt coal-fired Nebraska City generating unit is scheduled for operation in 1979.

The board approved a $2, 281,000 contract with Southern Electrical Contractors, Inc., of Omaha for underground ductwork and electrical equipment installation at the North Omaha Power Station.

The board awarded a $1,914,432 contract for aluminum wire to Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Sales, Inc., of Oakland, Calif. The wire will be used to build 53.5 miles of 345,000-volt transmission lines between the Nebraska City Power Station and a district substation southwest of Omaha.

The board gave a $387,140 contract to Meyer Industries of Redwing, Minn., for the purchase of 41 transmission line structures for use between two Omaha substations.

The L.E. Myers Co. of Chicago was awarded a $61,295 contract for construction of a three-mile 161,000-volt steel pole transmission line between two Omaha substations.

OPPD Said Not Affected By Proposal

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Public Power District General Manager Frank Shaw said Thursday that President Ford's proposal to eliminate all baseload, oil-fired generating plants by 1980 has no direct effect on OPPD.

Shaw said the district's oil-fired units are used for peaking rather than base load. This means the units are used only for short periods during high use periods or emergencies.

Shaw said nearly 80% of OPPD's present generating capacity is nuclear or coal-fired.

Shaw said the district's oil-fired units are used for peaking rather than base load. This means the units are used only for short periods during high use periods or emergencies.

Nebraska Library Group To Honor Slote, Woods

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Library Association's highest award will go to two women for their book on Nebraska author Willa Cather, it was announced Thursday.

The Mari Sandoz Award will be presented to Bernice Slote, University of Nebraska professor, and Lucia Woods of New York City at the Friday dinner which will conclude the association's convention.

An authority on Willa Cather, Miss Slote wrote the text for "Willa Cather: A Pictorial Memoir," and Miss Woods did the pictures.

The association's Meritorious Service Award will go to Mrs. Louise R. Shelledy, association executive secretary, and its Trustees Award to the Grand Island Public Library Board for its efforts in obtaining a new library.

Lower Platte South Committee OKs Land Appraisal For Dam

The Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD) executive committee has authorized an appraisal of land in the North Oak watershed between Agnew and Valparaiso for a flood control dam.

The NRD's area planning and operations committee, headed by Julius Hellerich of Valparaiso, recommended that the appraisal be made of an entire section of land.

Although the North Oak watershed plan calls for a flood control structure at the site, NRD directors are eyeing its expansion as a potential multipurpose structure including public access for recreation.

The appraisal will allow directors to make a decision on expanding the scope of the project. The NRD will be responsible for some or all of the land acquisition costs, but General Manager Hal Schroeder said the Soil Conservation Service, which will be expected to handle construction costs, may furnish as much as one-half the land acquisition funds if the structure is to be a public multipurpose facility.

One Of 12 Planned

The dam and lake is one of 12 flood control structures planned for the North Oak watershed. Construction recently began on the first structures in the project.

The executive committee also approved the payment of $2,021 to Butler County for the NRD's share of a road structure three-fourths of a mile west of Loma. The NRD portion of the cost covers additional embankment and overflow tube installation to allow the structure to also retard flood water.

NRD Chairman Harold Sieck and State Forester Dick Gavit signed an agreement authorizing the NRD and the University of Nebraska to share the services of a forester.

Under the agreement, the NRD will provide a portion of the salary of an additional forester on the University Extension Division staff, who would assist in planning and implementing tree planting programs in connection with NRD projects. He would also be available to assist the SCS in planning wind-break and wildlife habitat plantings as part of conservation plans on private property.

"We're going to find someone to make this pilot project go, hopefully by the first of the year," Gavit told the directors. "We're anxious to get additional foresters and to promote forestry in the state."

The executive committee also heard reports on a runoff water research project and the Lancaster County soil survey.

Gerald Schuman of the USDA Agricultural Research Service said lack of rainfall since the installation of measuring equipment has slowed the runoff research project on Dee Creek in the Greenwood-Alvo area.

Holiday Inns Will Match Trujillo Reward Money

Ogallala (UPI) — The national headquarters of Holiday Inns Thursday announced it will match all money over $1,000 raised locally for an additional reward for information leading to the conviction of the killer of Luis Trujillo Jr., 22, son of Keith County Sheriff Luis Trujillo.

Plan To Assure Employee Quality

The new county personnel plan will not only give county employees job security, but will assure the public that the most-qualified employees are being hired. Bob Colin, County Board of Commissioners chairman, told members of the Kiwanis Club.

Colin said the new system will provide new features such as a position classification plan with job descriptions, a standard pay plan, regulations and a recruitment system.

The younger Trujillo, assistant night auditor at the Des Moines downtown Holiday Inn, was shot to death by a bandit Aug. 22.

The Des Moines Holiday Inn and the Trujillo family each have established $1,000 rewards. In addition, the Ogallala Holiday Inn, where Trujillo worked at one time, has put up a $500 reward.

The Keith County Bank and Trust Co., of Ogallala, is supervising the reward contribution fund.

Law enforcement officials in Iowa have said they feel one of the best ways to get information leading to the killer's arrest is to offer an attractive reward.

Also killed during the Aug. 22 holdup was a motel security guard, Danny Peters, 21. Another motel employee and a guest were wounded by the bandit as he fled with about $60.

Omaha (AP) — The Calvin Memorial Presbyterian Church is providing about $2,000 in aid to David Rice in his upcoming appeal battle. Rice, convicted of the 1970 booby-trap death of Omaha police officer Larry Minard, had his conviction overturned recently in U.S. District Court. The state has appealed that decision to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Norfolk Finalist In Cities Contest

Norfolk (AP) — Mayor James Miller was told Thursday that Norfolk is one of 21 finalists in the All-America Cities Citizens Action Award Competition.

The National Municipal League, sponsor of the annual competition, said more than 300 communities entered.

William Cassella Jr., league executive director, said in a notice from New York that the Norfolk application had been screened by a committee of civic activists and public affairs specialists.

"I think it certainly demonstrates the outstanding community involvement and the pride that we have here in our community," Mayor Miller said. Finals will be held in conjunc-

Norfolk, population 18,068, was cited for three accomplishments: Development of a clearinghouse for voluntary action; expansion of educational opportunities and strengthening of its economic base.
